- 365  CILICIA, Uncertain. Gaius Sosius, Imperator? Circa 38 BC. Æ are head right / Fiscus, sella, quaestoria and hasta; Q below. RPC I 5410; Laffaille 324; Grant, FITA, pg. This coinage has previously been attributed to a Macedonian mint with identification of the portrait as Brutus (Friedlander) or Caesar (Grant). RPC presents a case for a Cilician or Syrian origin, supported by find data, with a suggestion that the portrait is Octavian(?), although the portrait is quite unlike those of Octavian from elsewhere. Issues of similar portrait style, perhaps by the same engraver, include the Princeps Felix coinage, RPC 4082-3, from Cilicia. In our opinion, both sets of Cilician or Syrian issues portray Sosius, a leading general of Marc Antony. Sosius was quaestor (symbolized on this coinage with a Q and the symbols of the office) in 39 BC. The island of Zacynthus, a fleet station of Antony's, issued coins in the name of C SOSIVS Q (RPC 1290), C SOSIVS IMP (RPC 1291), C SOSIVS COS DESIG (RPC 1292), and C SOSIVS COS (RPC 1293). The first of these issues coincides with the dating of this coin. Note that both include the title "Q". Sosius was governor of Syria in 38 BC. Antony supported Herod the Great against his rival Antigonus, and Josephus describes how Sosius commanded the Roman forces in support of Herod's claim. Sosius captured the island and town of Aradus in 38 BC and Jerusalem in July of 37 BC, for which he was acclaimed Imperator. Josephus notes that he was about to allow the soldiers to loot the fallen city and slay its inhabitants, when Herod intervened. Herod asked if the Romans, by emptying the city of money and men, had a mind to leave him to become king of a desert? Herod paid the troops a donative instead, and Sosius himself received a "most royal bounty". Sosius called the defeated king the feminine name "Antigona" and imprisoned him for Antony to execute later. In 36 BC Sosius assisted Octavian and Agrippa against Sextus Pompey and afterward probably stayed in Rome, where he celebrated a triumph in Rome in 34 BC and was consul along with Domitius Ahenobarbus in 32 BC. During his consulship, he rebuilt the Temple of Apollo, which had been constructed in 431 BC. He introduced a measure in the Senate to censure Octavian, but this was vetoed by a tribune. As war between Octavian and Antony approached, Sosius fled Octavian and Rome along with some 300 senators. At Actium in 31 BC, Sosius commanded the left wing of Antony's naval forces. This wing of heavy ships entered the battle first, but was overwhelmed by the smaller, faster ships of Agrippa, commander of Octavian's fleet. Meanwhile, Cleopatra, and then Antony, escaped through the opening created by the movement. Sosius fought on, surrendered and was spared by Octavian. (Crawford 494/43a; HCRI 189; Sydenham 1094; Mussidia 7). Old iridescent cabinet toning. Choice very fine. This denarius celebrates a shrine to one of the more unlikely patron deities of the Roman pantheon: Venus Cloacina - the Venus who protected the sewer system (the Cloaca Maxima) of Rome. The Cloaca Maxima was said to have been built under the Etruscan kings, Tarquinius Priscus and Tarquinius Superbus, as a means of draining the swampland around the city's seven hills. In order to protect the drainage system the Sabine king Titus Tatius was said to have erected a shrine to honor Cloacina, the spirit of the sewer who came to be identified with Venus in the Republican period. By some bizarre twist, the composite goddess Venus Cloacina was ultimately recognized as having two spheres of authority: the protection of the sewers, and the protection of the marital bed. Apparently the Roman Republican mind spent more time in the gutter than is usually admitted. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 3.80 gr Diameter: 18 mm Starting price: 1 GBP |

Laureate, draped, and cuirassed bust right / Elephant advancing left, guided by mahout, holding goad and wand. RIC IV 167a; Banti 7. Continuing the tradition of Claudius and Antoninus Pius before him, the celebration of the Secular Games at the end of every century since the founding of Rome culminated during the reign of Philip I, as the city celebrated her 1,000th anniversary in AD 248. The legends on these issues almost exclusively read SAECVLARES AVGG, and feature a similar iconography from previous games, such as the she-wolf suckling the twins, the various wild beasts paraded through the amphitheater, and a cippus inscribed for the preservation of the memory of these events. The legend and the image of an elephant of this reverse type alludes to the munificence of the emperor through the largesse given to the populace and through various public spectacles, many of which would feature wild and foreign animals such as the elephant. Additionally, elephants were viewed by the ancients as symbols of eternity as they were thought to have an extraordinarily long life span. As golden age symbolism was very common before, during, and after the wars of the succession, a dual-meaning may also have been intended. A very interesting and historically important seal! Philaretos Brachamios (Varazhnuni), Romanos IV's strategos, doux and, according to Anna Komnene (An.Komn. 2:64.5—8), domestikos, was—if we believe MICHAEL I THE SYRIAN (Chronique, tr. Chabot 3:173)— an Armenian robber from the village of Shurbaz; thus his identification as a Byzantine general is questionable. After Romanos IV's blinding, Philaretos became independent ruler of Tarsos, Antioch, Edessa, Melitene, and some other eastern centers. Greek, Syriac, and Armenian traditions all charge Philaretos with cruelty and greed: he allegedly confiscated the riches of Antiochene magnates and distributed them among his supporters. After Nikephoros III's accession to the throne, Philaretos acknowledged his allegiance to the Byzantium and was proclaimed kouropalates and domestikos ton scholon of the East; in 1084 he surrendered Antioch to the Turks. He disappeared thereafter from the scene, but an anonymous Syriac chronicle mentions the sons of Philaretos domestikos, "Christians" (i.e., Orthodox) who ruled over Maras and Black Mountain (A.S. Tritton, H.A.R. Gibb, JRAS [Jan. 1933] 720. The family is not known after the 11th C., except in 1171 when Brachamioi served as messengers in negotiations between Manuel I and the Armenians.
