RIC II 642; Strack 472; Banti 29; BMCRE 1033; Cohen 39. Trajan's final campaign was sparked by Parthia's replacement of the pro-Roman king of Armenia with one of their own in 114 AD. Armenia had been a strategic and semi-independent kingdom which served as an important buffer between Parthia and Rome. The last conflict overt this region, during Nero's reign, resulted in a delicate balance that stabilized the situation for over fifty years. The move by Parthia now upset the balance and posed a threat to Rome's wealthy Syrian cities. Trajan's campaign was swift and decisive; by 115 AD, Armenia was restored as a Roman client state. To secure the eastern frontier, he then moved southward through Mesopotamia, and captured the Parthian capital, Ctesiphon, in 116 AD. Although short-lived, these victories were celebrated on much of Trajan's later coinage. Starting price: 1'200 USDEstimate: 2'000 USD |

| 149 |    | Probus, 276-282. Antoninianus (Silvered bronze, 22 mm, 2.9 gm. Siscia, c. 277. Obv: IMP C M AVR PROBVS AVG Radiate and cuirassed bust of Probus to right. Rev: SISCIA PROBI AVG / XXI Q Siscia seated to left on throne, holding a long diadem with both hands; to left and right, the river-gods Savus and Colapsis holding urns from which water flows. Cohen 635. RIC 765. Much of the original silvering remaining. Extremely Rare and exceptionally well preserved. Siscia, the nearest imperial mint to Probus' home town of Sirmium, appears to have maintained close relationships with the emperor: it issued a number of unusual reverse types that boast the emperor's origin in the region (ORIGINI AVG, RIC 701-3) or call him 'our Augustus' (VICT PROBI AVG NOSTRI, RIC 793-4). Our coin is an excellent example of the most famous type from this series: it calls Siscia the '[town] of Probus Augustus' and shows the personification of Siscia flanked by the river-gods Savus and Colapsis. This is one of just very few cases of the portrayal of a local motive on a Roman imperial coin. Siscia was situated on the confluence of the Savus (Sava) and the Colapsis (Kupa) in modern-day Croatia, a strategically important location as it was here that the Sava became navigable and thus served as a quick and reliable transport route between the important military infrastructure of Northern Italy and the Danube frontier. While the initiative for this extraordinary series of coins likely came from local officials at the imperial mint, there can be no doubt that Probus did indeed favor his home region - possibly due to pride in his origins, but certainly also because of its strategic position and its importance as a recruitment area for the Roman army. Starting price: 400 USDEstimate: 600 USD |

Obv: Draped bust of Serapis right, wearing modius Rev: Nilus reclining left, holding reed and cornucopia; Γ/—//ALE. Alföldi, Festival pl. IV, 35; Vagi 3384. Very Rare The Isis festival was a major celebration in Rome in the 3rd and 4th centuries, heralding the arrival of the ship of Isis (navigium Isidis) from Alexandria on 5 March. Besides Isis and Horus, other members of the Egyptian pantheon appear - Serapis, Anubis, Harpocrates, and Nilus. Such coins or tokens with imperial busts were first struck by Diocletian at Rome to mark the arrival of the ship, and the tradition continued through the 4th century; the latest imperial bust to appear is that of Valentinian II. Alföldi proposes that in the Middle Ages the festival associated with the Isis ship (also known as carrus navalis) became the car naval or carnival. Starting price: 150 USDEstimate: 250 USD |

Rev: ΠΟΜΠΗΙΟΠΟΛΕΙΤΩΝ / Ας ςΤ, Draped male bust (the astronomer Aratus) right; date and mark of value before. SNG BN 1250; Ziegler 594. Very Rare. Aratus, 310-240 BC, whose only extant work is Phaenomena, a poem in 1,154 hexameters, consists of a hymn to Zeus, in which he describes the northern (19–320) and the southern (320–453) constellations. He refrains from giving an explanation of the planetary movements (454–461), apparently because of their complicated nature and the difficulty of calculating their conjunction (an allusion to the great year) . Next (462–558) Aratus describes the circles of the celestial sphere and then (559–757) deals with the calendar: the hours of the risings and settings of stars (559–732), the days of the lunar month (733–739), the seasons (740–751), and the Metonic cycle (752–757). The second part of the poem (758–1154) deals with weather signs and is an integral part of it even though some ancient commentators give it a separate title (Prognosis). Starting price: 300 USD Estimate: 500 USD |
