There is considerable variation in both the style and fabric of Flavian tetradrachms traditionally assigned to Antioch, and scholars have long suspected that multiple mints were participating in their production. Stylistically, Kraay divided them between four possible mints (Antioch, a mint under the influence of Antioch, Tripolis[?], and Tyre); McAlee between five (Antioch, Tripolis[?], Aradus[?], Caesarea Maritima, and Tyre); and Butcher three (Antioch, Caesarea Maritima, and Alexandria). - 617  Nikephoros proedros and "first" of the judges. A beautiful, rare, iconographic and in extremely fine condition byzantine lead seal of high historical importance , (11th cent.) Obverse: Mother of God in the middle, standing facial, nimbate and orans (in the "Blachernitissa" iconographic type), wearing maphorion and chiton, standing on a pavement, bearing Jesus Christ as infant on her chest inside a medallion, in either side a nimbate saint in praying posture towards Jesus and Theotokos, martyr Blasios (?) left wearing decorated chiton, saint Nicholaos right in prelate's garments, sigla, MP-ΘV (Mother of God), [ΟΑΓΙΟC]ΡΑC (saint Blasios?), Ο ΑΓΙΟC ΝΙΚΟΛΑ(ΟC) (saint Nicholaos), all within dotted border. Reverse: Inscription in 7 lines between decorative patterns following a cross, +CYNMH/TPICΩTEP/MAPTYPIOYH/ΠΟΛΩCΚΕΠΟΙC/ΠΡΟΕΔΡΟΝΚΑΙ/ΚΡΙΤΩΝΝΙ/ΚΗΦΟΡΟΝ = Σὺν μητρί, Σῶτερ, μάρτυρι, θυηπόλῳ, σκέποις πρόεδρον καὶ κριτῶν Νικηφόρον (Savior, together with your Mother, the martyr, and the bishop, may you protect Nikephoros, proedros and "first" of the judges), all within dotted border. Commentary: The inscription in the reverse consists of two twelve-syllable iambic verses. In his edition of the seal, Laurent read Μαδύτων and μαρτυρίου πόλῳ; both are erroneous. The reading of lines five and six is problematic, but the Zacos specimen supplies the missing portions, while the present is the best preserved of the other two parallels. The difficulty here is interpreting the word κριτῶν (line 6). What the inscription implies is that Nikephoros was a proedros and "first" of the judges. Does this mean he was a μέγας δρουγγάριος τῆς βίγλας? Concerning the office of the droungarios of the watch, see Laurent, Corpus 2: 465. Note also, in the same volume, no. 165, the seal of Thomas, "president" of the notaries. W. Seibt identifies the saints as Demetrios and Nicholas, and the owner of the seal as one of the nephews of the patriarch Michael Keroularios (1043–1058) in a discussion of a seal in the Zacos Collection (Mech. 26), which depicts a similar composition of three figures on the obverse (Österreich II, no. 54, and p. 82). Bibliography: DO Seals 5 no. 129.1; Laurent, Corpus 5.3: no. 1791 (with misreadings). Similar specimen in the Fonds Zacos, BnF 3176; it is illustrated in Zacos, Seals II, pl. 63 (no. 638), but appears with the wrong entry number. - Byzantine lead seal of Leon scriptor with the rarest depiction of saint Leon (ca 11th cent.). Obverse: Bust of saint bishop Leon, facial, nimbate, wearing chiton and omophorion, blessing by his right and holding the Book of Gospels in his left, sigla O (ΑΓΙΟC)/ΛΕ-Ω/Ν ΧΑ(?) = Ὁ ἅγιος Λέων Χα... (saint Leon), all within dotted border. Reverse: Inscription in 5 lines between decorative patterns following a cross, + ΛΕΩΝ/ΓΡΑΦΕΙ/ΦΥΛΑΞΑC/ΤΗCΓΡΑ[ΟΥ?]/ΛΕΩΝ = Λέων γραφεῖ φυλάξα(ι)ς τῆς Γραουλέων ([Oh saint Leon], you may protect Leon the scriptor of Graouleon), all within dotted border. Commentary: The inscription on reverse consists a 12-syllable iambic verse. The depicted saint bishop with the name Leon could be either the Pope of Rome, or the bishop of Catanae in Sicily. It's not possible to the cataloguer to decipher the meaning of the abbreviation ΧΑ following the saint's name. As for the name Graouleon (?), we could guess it refers to a certain town, monastery or bishopric, where Leon was serving as a scriptor, i.e. copyist of manuscripts. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 19,4 gram Diameter: 30,8 mm

- Byzantine lead seal of Peter hypatos (consul) and in charge of imperial treasury (?), with the unusual depiction of animals (ca 11th cent.). Obverse: A bird (pertridge?) to right between herbal decoration, circular inscription clockwise between double dotted border, +ΠΕΤΡΩΥΠΑΤΩCΕ[ΠΙΤΩΝ]ΛΑΡΓΙΤΟΝ (?) (Seal of Peter consul and in charge of largitio). Reverse: A griffin to right between herbal decoration, circular inscription clockwise between double dotted border, as in obverse, +ΠΕΤΡΩΥΠΑΤΩCΕ[ΠΙΤΩΝ]ΛΑΡΓΙΤΟΝ (?) (Seal of Peter consul and in charge of largitio). Commentary: If our reading of the last defective in both inscriptions phrase is correct, then Peter was possibly in charge of the imperial treasury (λαργίτων> latin largitio, -onis). The high dignity of Pater could be signified by the large size of his seal. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 24,1 gram Diameter: 31,8 mm

Byzantine lead seal of Philaretos Brachamios, proedros and doux of Edessa (11th cent.) Obverse: St. Theodore standing, facing, wearing military dress, holding spear in right hand, resting left on shield, sigla, Ο ΑΓΙΟΣ[ΘΕΟ]-ΔΩΡΟCΟΤΗΡΩΝ = Ὁ ἅγιος Θεόδωρος ὁ Τήρων (Saint Theodore Tiron), all within dotted border. Reverse: Inscription in 5 lines, ΦΙΛΑΡ/ ΕΤΟ,ΠΡΟΕΔΡ,ΔΟΥΞΕ/ΔΕCΙ,ΟΡ/ΡΑΧΑ, = Φιλάρετος πρόεδρος καὶ δοῦξ Ἐδέσσης ὁ Βραχάμιος (Philaretos Brachamios, proedros and doux of Edessa), dotted border. A very interesting and historically important seal! Philaretos Brachamios (Varazhnuni), Romanos IV's strategos, doux and, according to Anna Komnene (An. Komn., Alexias, 2:64.5-8), domestikos, was -if we believe MICHAEL I THE SYRIAN (Chronique, transl. Chabot 3:173)- an Armenian robber from the village of Shurbaz; thus his identification as a Byzantine general is questionable. After Romanos IV's blinding, Philaretos became independent ruler of Tarsos, Antioch, Edessa, Melitene, and some other eastern centers. Greek, Syriac, and Armenian traditions all charge Philaretos with cruelty and greed: he allegedly confiscated the riches of Antiochene magnates and distributed them among his supporters. After Nikephoros III's accession to the throne, Philaretos acknowledged his allegiance to the Byzantium and was proclaimed kouropalates and domestikos ton scholon of the East; in 1084 he surrendered Antioch to the Turks. He disappeared thereafter from the scene, but an anonymous Syriac chronicle mentions the sons of Philaretos domestikos, "Christians" (i.e., Orthodox) who ruled over Maras and Black Mountain (A.S. Tritton, H.A.R. Gibb, JRAS [Jan. 1933] 720. The family is not known after the 11th C., except in 1171 when Brachamioi served as messengers in negotiations between Manuel I and the Armenians. | 657 |    | Byzantine lead seal of Philaretos Brachamios, protosebastos, protoproedros of the scholai of the East and domestikos (11th cent.) Obverse: St. Theodore standing facing, wearing military dress, holding spear in right hand, resting left on shield, sigla, Ο ΑΓΙΟΘΕΟ-[ΔΩΡΟΣ] = Ὁ ἅγιος Θεόδωρος (Saint Theodore), all within dotted border. Reverse: Inscription in 7 lines (first missing), [A,CE]/RACTΩ/ΦΙΛΑΡΕΤΩ/Α,Α,ΕΔΡΟΤΟ,/[CX]Ο,ΕΩΑΚΕ/[ΜΓ?]ΔΟΜΕ/[C]ΤΙΚ, = Πρωτοσεβάστω Φιλαρέτῳ πρωτοπροέδρῳ τῶν Σχολῶν Ἐώς καὶ μεγάλῳ δομestίκῳ (Of the protosebastos Philaretos protoproedros of the Eastern Scholai and grand domestikos), dotted border. A very interesting and historically important seal! In addition to the commentary at the previous lot, no. 657, Philaretos Brachamios was a Byzantine general of Armenian descent who rose to fame in the wake of the Battle of Manzikert in 1071, a disastrous defeat that led to the loss of most of eastern Asia Minor by the central Byzantine government. However, a series of local Byzantine military commanders continued to fight the Seljuks in the late 11th century, the most successful of which was Philaretos, who controlled large parts of Cilicia, Armenia and Syria as a semi-autonomous warlord. His main strongholds were the important cities of Melitene and Antiochia, the latter of which was lost to the Seljuks in 1086, just twelve years before it was captured by the knights of the First Crusade in 1098. Philaretos is not mentioned much in historiographical sources, but a number of seals attest his cursus honorum. Our seal dates to the beginning of the reign of Alexios Komnenos, who likely awarded Philaretos his highest court dignity of protosebastos upon his ascension to the throne in 1081. Metcalf, Crusades 361-2; CCS 58 var. Rare. Bohémond was born to Raymond of Poitiers, then Prince of Antioch, and Constance of Antioch in 1144. Raymond was killed leading a Crusader army against the Zengid forces of Nur al-Din at the battle of Inab in 1149. As Bohémond was still in his minority, his mother ruled as regent. When he came of age in 1163, however, Constance attempted to retain power, but she was exiled after her subjects revolted. Bohémond was a close ally of Raymond III of Tripoli, and he joined the latter in attempting to lift Nur al-Din's siege of Harim in 1164. The venture was a failure, and both were captured and imprisoned by the Muslims. The Byzantine emperor intervened and ransomed their release the following year. Over the following two decades, Bohémond became involved in internal disputes among the Byzantines, the Armenian Kingdom, and the Kingdom of Jerusalem. Regarding the latter, he and Raymond of Tripoli attempted to have Baldwin IV of Jerusalem name their candidate, Balian of Ibelin, as heir, but the king decided upon Gui of Lusignan. This event has terrible consequences for the Crusaders. Gui and his allies sparked a conflict with the Muslims under Saladin, whose forces eventually destroyed the Kingdom's army, which also included many allied forces, at the battle of Hattin in 1187. With this defeat, the Jerusalem soon fell to the Muslims. Bohémond was not present for the battle, but his elder son, Raymond, was there, but escaped with Raymond of Tripoli. After Hattin, Saladin moved against Antioch, but Bohémond successfully defended the city, and the Muslims were forced to withdraw. Raymond of Tripoli died soon after Hattin, and had designated Bohémond's son Raymond as his successor, but Bohémond appointed his younger son, Bohémond IV, instead. In 1194, king Leo II of Armenia captured a castle of the outskirts of Antioch, and took Bohémond captive after luring him there under the pretense of conducting negotiations. Eventually, Henri II, nominal king of Jerusalem, intervened, and secured Bohémond's release upon the latter's giving up any claim to Armenian territory. Bohémond's later years were relatively uneventful, but his death in 1201 sparked a succession battle between his son, Bohémond IV, and grandson, Raymond-Roupen. CAROLINGIANS. Charles le Simple (the Simple). As Charles IV, King of West Francia, 898-922. AR Denier. Metallum (Melle) mint. + CARLV(retrograde S) REX R (sic), cross pattée / MET/ALO in two lines. Depeyrot 629; M&G –; MEC –; Fécamp 8388-8400. EF, toned, traces of underlying luster, minor deposits. Charles le Chauve revived the monogram deniers of Charlemagne. However, the Melle mint recalled the mint-name reverse type first issued under Louis le Pieux. These original two line types were issued from 818-822/3 and bear witness to a time of economic expansion in the Carolingian Empire. In his early coinages, Louis attempted to curtail the number of mints to ensure quality. This type, however, was issued in high quality at a tremendous number of mints. No less than 45 locations produced coins of this type, including Arles, Cologne, Quentovic, Pavia, and Venice, to name a few. Melle, as the location of the largest and most productive silver mine in Carolingian territory, was a particularly important mint that produced vast numbers of coins during the period. Due to the high quality of these issues, the type proved to be extremely popular and was issued under Charles le Chauve for a number of decades with the legend META/LLVM before being reissued under Charles le Simple with the legend MET/ALO. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 1,1 gram Diameter: 20,8 mm
