66 IONIA. Ephesus. Ca. 133-88 BC. AV stater. First series, ca. 133-100 BC. Jenkins, Hellenistic, pl. B, 6 (dated 123-119 BC). Head p. 69, 4 var.. The Hellenistic gold staters of Ephesus have been the subject of long-running debate over when they were struck. In the 1880s, the eminent Barklay V. Head assigned them to the period of the Mithradatic Wars, circa 88-86 BC, when Ephesus briefly came under the control of the Pontic King Mithradates VI Eupator. However, as more varieties were discovered over the next century, it became clear they were struck over a much longer period of time. G.K. Jenkins, in a 1987 article, placed them in two groups starting in the later second century BC, after the Roman takeover of Asia Province in 133 BC, and linked the reverse symbols present on several varieties to similar symbols found on the common cistophoric tetradrachm coinage of the Roman era. Staters with a simpler two-letter ethnic, including the present example, belong to the earlier period, prior to 100 BC. 666 Herakleios, Herakleios Constantine and Heraklonas lead seal (638-641). Obverse: The Mother of God standing facial, nimbate, wearing maphorion and chiton, holding Christ as child before her, a cross in either side in the field, all within wreath border. Each figure wears a crown with a cross and a chlamys and holds a globus cruciger in his right hand, no inscription, all within wreath border. Commentary: Dating seals depicting Heraklonas on which he is fairly short depends upon whether the crown represents his rank of augustus, attained in July of 638. This entry follows Zacos and Veglery in affirming this chronology, whereas Morrisson, who does not believe that Heraklonas's small crown is indicative of his status as an augustus, suggests a date between 1 January 632 and 7 April 638. Bibliography: DO Seals 6, no. 17.1b; Zacos-Veglery, no. 14b. Illustrated and discussed in Morrisson, "Du consul à l'empereur," 259, table 1, and 264, no. 8. 667 Byzantine lead seal of Theodosios patrikios, in charge of Apotheke of Sykes Anemouriou of Antioch (ca 685-695, possibly AD 694) Obverse: Emperor Justinian II (most probably) standing facial, wearing a crown with a cross and a chlamys and holding a globus cruciger in his right hand, in the field the sign of Indiction (the letter defining the Indiction missing as of a hole in this point, but possibly it was Θ), circular inscription clockwise, ΘΕΟΔΟΚΙΟΥ ΠΑΤΡΙΚΙΟΥ (of Theodosios patrikios), no visible border. (of the Apotheke of Sykes Anemouriou of Antioch and ...), no visible border. Apotheke (Greek: Ἀποθήκη) was a state storehouse or warehouse. The owner of the present seal was in charge of such an Apotheke in Anemourion. It was in the Roman province of Cilicia, later Isauria, and was situated near a high promontory (Cape Anamur) that marks the southernmost point of Asia Minor, only 64 km from Cyprus. Because of the genitive used here on obverse, the seal is datable to late 7th century, so during the first reign of Justinian II. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 17.4 gr Diameter: 31 mm

The owner of the present seal is Nikephoros Botaneiates ([1020]-after 1081). His possible origin is suggested by Skylitzes who names "Botaniates ex nobilibus a Phoca oriundus" when recording his rise to power in [1077/78]. Any relationship between the Phokas and Botaneiates families has not yet been traced. Cedrenus names "Romanus Sclerus, Burtza, Botaneiates, Basilii Argyrii filii" among the supporters of Isaakios Komnenos, in 1057. Skylitzes records that "magister Basilius Apocapes et magister Nicephorus Botaniates" campaigned against the Pechenegs in Bulgaria and were captured, dated to [1059/60]. He was military commander in the Danube area in 1064. Governor of Antioch in 1065. Although he enjoyed good relations with Romanos Diogenes, on the latter's accession as Emperor Romanos IV the relationship cooled. After Emperor Michael VII succeeded in 1071, Nikephoros Botaneiates returned to favour and was appointed kouropalates and strategos of the theme of Anatolikon. He rebelled against Emperor Michael VII, was acclaimed emperor 7 Jan 1078, gained the support of Suleiman Seljuk Sultan, and marched on Constantinople where a revolt broke out in his support against the unpopular government of the emperor. He entered Constantinople 24 Mar 1078, and was crowned Emperor NIKEPHOROS III the same day by the Patriarch. He married the wife of his predecessor, who had retired to a monastery, to gain legitimacy. He was faced by the rebellion of Nikephoros Bryennios, governor of Durazzo, and of Basilacius in Thessaly. The Turkish garrison of Nikaia also rose in revolt. He was excommunicated by Pope Gregory, and Robert "Guiscard" Duke of Apulia landed at Avlona and marched towards Durazzo. This was followed by the revolt of Nikephoros Melissenos, whose alliance with Sultan Suleiman enabled the latter to capture Bythina and establish himself as Sultan at Nikaia. Finally, Alexios Komnenos rebelled and forced Nikephoros's abdication 4 Apr 1081. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 23.9 gr Diameter: 28 mm 1

With a history going back over 6,000 years, Tarsus has long been an important stop for traders and a focal point of many civilizations. During the Roman Empire, Tarsus was the capital of the province of Cilicia. 699 Gnostic Lead Tessera of the ancient demon Abrasax, circa 2nd-4th century AD. IAw Abrasax facing, with the head of a rooster and snakes for legs, holding a whip in his right hand and a shield with his left. Rev. ABPA/CAE with star-in-crescent above. Cf. Elsen 124 (2015), 404 and Rauch MBS 8 (2004), 685 (both of cruder style and with I-A across the fields). Very rare and of great historical interest. Comment: The worship of the ancient demon Abrasax (or Abraxas) rose to great prominence in Roman times through the teachings of the Christian Gnostic Basilides of Alexandria (circa 85-145 AD), who called Abrasax the 'great archon' and the first of the 365 Gnostic Aeons. The etymology of his name is still unclear: it may go back to the Egyptian words 'abrak' and 'sax', translating as 'the honorable and hallowed word', but it is noteworthy that the letters of his name, in Greek isopsephy, add up to 365, the amount of days in a solar year: A = 1, B = 2, P = 100, A = 1, Σ = 200, A = 1, Ξ = 60, thus: 1+2+100+1+200+1+60 = 365. Basilides' followers believed, among other things, that Abrasax sent Christ as a ghost to the world, which lead to sharp refutations by Early Church Fathers such as Hippolytus of Rome, Clement of Alexandria and Eusebius of Caesarea. The popularity of Basilidianism was mostly restrained to Egypt, where a vivid Gnostic sect is attested in the 2nd-4th centuries, but its legacy still lives on today, as one compelling theory proclaims, in the famous magic word 'abracadabra!'. 914 Ancient Rome Bronze Statue of Hermaphroditus, AD 1-200 Hermaphroditus is largely remembered as a tragic figure in European culture. This ancient Greek deity is best known from the Roman poet Ovid's work, Metamorphoses, as the handsome male protagonist of a story with a female water nymph called Salmacis. Hermaphroditus was the child of Hermes, the messenger of the gods, and Aphrodite, the goddess of beauty, sexuality and love, and was also considered a god of love and fertility in ancient Greece. This deity holds an important place in our history as the origin of the word hermaphrodite, though we now consider this an archaic, inaccurate term, suitable for botany and zoology, but no longer acceptable to describe intersex people. The quantity of sculptures found in Roman and Greek art, like this example in the Ashmolean, shows that there was a great deal of Classical interest in Hermaphroditus too. However, a change in the social status and sex of this deity over time can be seen in the many examples of Classical, Hellenistic and Roman art. I believe that Greco-Roman myths, like that of Hermaphroditus, have led to a misunderstanding of the biology of intersex people and contributed to discrimination lasting even to the present day. Ovid tells us that when Salmacis fell in love with Hermaphroditus, she begged the gods to join them together and subsequently he became both male and female whilst bathing in her pool. Hermaphroditus and his female form, Hermaphrodite, were therefore depicted in ancient Greek and Roman sculptures with both breasts and a penis [1]. These intersex characteristics were revered as divine in some ancient Greek territories and portrayed in what are known as Anasyromenos statues (meaning the gesture of lifting up the skirt or kilt), with the figures exposing their genitalia. For the ancient Greeks, these depictions were considered apotropaic (good for scaring away evil influences) and good luck symbols. In some places, like Cyprus, Hermaphroditus was also worshipped in another form called Aphroditus [2], an androgynous version of Aphrodite, a goddess with a female body as well as a penis. Aphroditus' cult was linked to the moon, and one of union and marriage. Intersex deities, like Hermaphroditus and the goddesses Agdistis and Cybele, were imported from ancient Greece into the Roman Empire at a time of desperation during the Second Punic War (218-201 BC) [3]. They were popular after Rome's victory, with Cybele becoming absorbed into the Romans' Magna Mater ('Great Mother') goddess, for example. She was portrayed wearing a mural crown representing the city and as the Protectress of Rome with Hermaphroditus alongside her. However, despite this, Rome gradually began to question the Greek culture that inspired it so much, and even to consider Greek culture and men effeminate. The writer Varro (Sat 311) described them as "long haired, smooth chinned gown trailers". The androgyny of Hermaphroditus and intersex people was then identified as a foreign disorder [4]. Intersexuality was seen as a danger that could infect Roman babies and men with the disease of femininity, and androgyny was used as a visual symbol of their enemies to the East. Rome came to view Greece with extreme ambivalence. Customs, fashion and even food were at one and the same time adopted and despised. At the other extreme, for example, Pliny the Elder (7.34) tells us that intersex people were considered marvels and "deliciae" ('objects of delight') during the reigns of Pompey (106-48 BC) and Claudius (10 BC-54 AD).
