1304 Ancient Roman Army High Rank Soldiers Silver Aquila (Eagle) Pendant, elegantly decorated with a solid gold wire on the neck, c. 1st-2nd century AD. Note: An aquila (Classical Latin: ['akʷɪla], "eagle") was a prominent symbol used in ancient Rome, especially as the standard of a Roman legion. A legionary known as an aquilifer, the "eagle-bearer", carried this standard. Each legion carried one eagle. The eagle had quasi-religious importance to the Roman soldier, far beyond being merely a symbol of his legion. To lose a standard was extremely grave, and the Roman military went to great lengths both to protect a standard and to recover it if it were lost; after the annihilation of three legions in the Teutoburg Forest, the Romans spent decades retaliating for the defeat while also attempting to recover the three lost eagles.
