87 Greece British Military Authority 1 Pound, (1943-1945) S/N 39Z 000037 Pick M6d; Pitidis 440 Overprint GREECE Extremely rare. Graded About Uncirculated 50 EPQ. When British troops liberated Greece in October of 1944, military banknotes circulated with 1 pound being equivalent to 600 new drachmas. Among this series exists this very rare variety of the 1 pound with "GREECE" in black overprint. It is known that they had a special prefix 39Z with serial numbers from 000026 to 000050 making them only 25 examples. Fysikas in his article explains that the purpose behind this overprint is unknown but speculates that the British did not want to add the name or letter of each country prior to their arrival in case the Axis got hold of them and revealed their plans to invade. After counter-stamping a few examples locally, they realised how impractical it was and abandoned the idea which had little merit in the first place. The second explanation offered is that these notes were produced for deception purposes and carried by select British officers who would attempt to deceive the Axis into believing they would invade these regions. Similar notes exist for Bulgaria and France. In June of 1945 all Military Authority notes were withdrawn making these notes extremely rare. 6'400

611 Greece. Silver medal of the 1st Olympic Games in Athens (1896) was awarded to the 1st winner of each competition. It was engraved by the famous French artist Jules-Clement Chaplain. On the obverse, a laureate head of Zeus is depicted, holding a sphere, on which the winged Nike stands, holding an olive branch. On the reverse, the Acropolis rock with the Parthenon. On the edge around, the inscription "Διεθνείς Ολυμπιακοί Αγώνες-Αθήναι 1896" is engraved. An exceptional specimen of outstanding quality, rarity and historical interest. The cataloguers have never handled or encountered a finer example after extensive research. It was common practice at the time to polish medals but this piece is untouched with an attractive rainbow cabinet patina. Extremely rare medal especially in this condition, missing from the majority of Olympic related collections. According to records, only 43 such examples were awarded in the first Olympic Games of 1896. Possibly the finest known and certainly the finest graded. Graded MS62 NGC. Top Pop.

612 Greece. Complete medal set from the Intercalated Olympic Games of 1906 in Athens, winners, second and third prize medals (3). These medals are often confused with the games of 1896, which were also held in Athens and share an almost identical design, with the only difference being the date. The first winner was awarded with the gilt gold medal (graded AU58 NGC), the second with the silver (graded MS61 NGC) and the third with the bronze medal (graded MS64BN NGC). First winner's medal is in extraordinary quality with strong details and lustre, some natural areas of discolouration on the obverse which do not detract from its overall appearance. The second prize medal is in magnificent condition with old cabinet silver-grey patina and sharp details. Finally, the third prize medal is in unsurpassed quality with a rich milk chocolate patina and very sharp details. All examples are very rare and missing from many Olympic collections. It is important to note that these were produced at a time when the Olympic Games were struggling to survive and the number of participants and competing sports were incomparably fewer, thus making these examples rare. The opportunity to acquire one of the earliest sets of Olympic medals is certainly not to be missed. Graded AU58, MS61, MS64BN NGC respectively.
