Bull butting right; in exergue, fish right. Noe F30; HN Italy 1805. Ex Kunst und Münzen 54 (1984), lot 25. After the foundation of Thurium (444 BC), there was a reduction in the weight of Staters in all the cities on the Ionian Sea, probably due to the period of crisis following the burning of the Pythagorean schools. The coins of Thurium spread considerably in the region, making up for the rarefaction of those of the other mints. It is difficult to say why the minting of these Distaters was decided, which became regular after the detachment from Athens, evidenced by the type of obverse showing Athena's helmet no longer encircled by the laurel wreath but decorated with Scylla. Thurium indeed supported Athens in the war against Syracuse, but refused to recognise it as motherland in 434/3 BC. Condition: Good very fine. Weight: 15.59 g. Diameter: 27 mm. 2'000

Rev:  $\text{KPOT}\Omega\text{NIATA}$   $\Sigma$ . Herakles seated left on rock covered with lion's skin, holding cup and club, bow below; B above. HN Italy 2168; SNG ANS 373. In the ancient Achaean colony of Kroton, the cult of Hera Lakinia was widespread. A few kilometres south of the city, on a promontory, the Krotonians built a large sanctuary dedicated to the goddess, among the largest sacred areas in the entire Hellenic world. Heracles, considered by some sources to be the founder of the cult in honour of the goddess, finds not surprisingly an association with Hera on some coins, such as on this Stater. This issue may have had a strong political significance, as it would refer to the centrality of Kroton and the sanctuary of Hera Lakinia for the Italiote League Condition: Very fine. Weight: 7.65 g. Son of Antiochos III and Iotape, descendant of Seleucus I of Syria, he was the last king of Commagene. Antiochos IV spent his youth in Rome, at the court of Antonia Minor. He was probably close friends with emperor Caligula, who in AD 38 granted him the kingdom of Commagene, years after the death of his father. He married his sister Iotape I and remained on good terms with the later emperors Claudius, Nero and Vespasian, until he was implicated in an alleged rebellion against Rome, accused by the governor of Syria, Lucius Caesennius Paetus. Antiochos, faced with the advancing Roman army, decided to flee to Cilicia where he was arrested. Eventually Vespasian granted him and his family freedom, allowing him to return to Rome. Pietas standing facing left, placing hands on heads of two children, Sabina and Matidia, to left and right. Woytek 729; RIC 759 (Trajan). Salonia Matidia was born in AD 68 and was the only daughter of praetor Gaius Salonius Matidius Patruinus and Ulpia Marciana (mentioned in the obverse legend of this coin), the sister of the future emperor Trajan. She married at the age of 13-14 to Lucius Vibius Sabinus, from a powerful family of consular rank. In 83 AD a daughter, Vibia Sabina, the future wife of Emperor Hadrian, was born and her husband died. Matidia married twice more and had three more daughters, including the future grandmother of Marcus Aurelius, Rupilia Faustina. But her other two husbands also soon died. She made her home a literary salon, full of cultured people, and loved palace life, advising the emperor Trajan, and often following him to the battlefields to support him. She is also said to have had a good understanding with the emperor's wife, Plotina, with whom she worked to secure a worthy successor to the throne, opting for Hadrian, who married his daughter Vibia. It is unclear what happened when Trajan died, having fallen ill in Cilicia during the campaign against the Parthians. Hadrian's adoption, according to the historian Cassius Dio, was announced to the Roman Senate with a false letter from Trajan, actually written by Plotina. Hadrian however kept both women close and allowed Matidia to assist him until she died in 119 AD. At her death the emperor granted her a touching eulogy and organised spectacular gladiatorial games, and finally deified her by having a temple built in Rome. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 2.92 g.
