13 United-states - Half Dollar liberty 1853 O - Treasure Tuscaloosa Nice coin with a pleasant appearance. Bright original luster on reverse. Coin delivered with certificate. This interesting coin is part of gold and silver coins which were most probably buried during the American civil war. They were buried along one of the oldest stagecoach roads in Alabama, within 3 miles of what is now downtown Tuscaloosa, Alabama. The coins had been placed in a cloth bag which in turn was most likely placed in an iron box before burial approximately 2 feet underground. The bag had almost entirely rotted away and the box had turned entirely to rust. The coins were unearthed in the late 1990's by the property owner who was digging post holes for a privacy fence. A total of 276 coins were recovered dated from 1746 to 1860. Eight of the coins were U.S gold 1$ and 2,50 denominations. The remainder are silver consisting of 195 U.S Half dollars, 66 U.S quarters, 4 Mexicans silver coins, 2 French silver coins and a single counterfeit seated Liberty Half dollar. Attempts to identify the owner of the property who may have originally buried the coins have been complicated by the fact that the property was owned by at least 3 and possibly 4 different owners during the war. 12,2 g 30,5 mm Quality: AU/EF Metal: Silver

25 Restrike Aureus Gold Carl Wilhelm Becker Cornelia Supera Becker Aureus with a pleasant appearance. Nice golden patina.
Nice example. Restrike gold aureus with dies by Carl Wilhelm Becker. As a young man, Carl Wilhelm Becker was sent to train as a wine merchant, despite his desire to pursue a career in the arts.
Becker's wine business failed by 1803, and he subsequently undertook training as an engraver at the Munich mint. It appears Becker was producing copies of ancient coins by at least 1806, and he would go on to produce some 350 dies of classical and medieval coins, both common and rare. It was disputed then as now whether his intent was to defraud. While it is true he would offer coins to collectors and museums as study pieces, they would also frequently turn up in the trays of antiquarian dealers as genuine. Following Becker's death in 1830, his dies were transferred to the Berlin Museum, which used them to strike off-metal copies that were made available to museums, dealers, and collectors. Read the article Reference book : George F. Hill :

70 France - Louis XVI - Gold - Louis d'or horned head - à la corne - 1786 BB Strasbourg Coin with a pleasant appearance. scratches in the fields on reverse at 11'o clock and 3 o'clock. Nice example. Coin extremely rare with horned head. Rarity R5 in the Gadoury book. The scandal of the Louis d'or with a 'horn' from the Strasbourg mint broke out shortly after its discovery. This famous type has a curved bulge on the forehead, which was immediately understood as a horn and thus as an allusion to the fact that the king was unable to secure his succession and was betrayed by the queen. Comparisons can inevitably be made to prints of the period depicting Louis with the horns of a cuckold. Even if some numismatists only classify the 'horn' as a random die break or error, the prevailing opinion is that it was an intended change. After the so-called 'Affair of the Diamond Necklace' at the court of King Louis in 1785 in which the queen was involved, the monarchy was further discredited by the appearance of these coins. Most of the pieces that were produced at the time were apparently melted down in a timely manner, but a few evidently survived. 7,6 g 24,2 mm Quality: EF Metal: Gold
