Anubis standing right, holding palm frond; monogram to left; to right, capricorn left. Schönert 32-3; HGC 3.2, 1619. Very rare. In Ptolemaic Egypt (4th-1st century B.C.) Anubis was assimilated with the Greek god Hermes, psychopomp of the Greek religion, resulting in the syncretic god Hermanubis, depicted with the body of a man and the head of a jackal, holding the caduceus. In first-century tomb paintings it was very common to find Anubis accompanying the deceased by the hand. In Apuleius' Metamorphoses, the god is depicted, as on this coin, holding a palm branch in his right hand. The presence of Anubis, and other deities of Egyptian origin, on Perinthos coins begins under Ptolemy IV Philopator (221-204 BC), with the occupation of a large area of the coastal regions of Thrace by the Ptolemaic dynasty. There were also flourishing economic relations between Thrace and Egypt. Condition: Near very fine. Weight: 3.89 g. Diameter: 21 mm.

267 THRACE. Deultum. Philip I the Arab (244-249). Ae. Obv: IMP M IVL PHILIPPVS AVG. Radiate, draped and cuirassed bust right. Rev: COL FL PAC DEVL T. Perseus standing left, holding harpa and head of Gorgo, releasing Andromeda from her chains and stepping on Cetus turned to stone. RPC VIII online - (unassigned; ID 48554); Jurukova 445. According to myth, the Nereids, daughters of Nereus and Doris, was of proverbial beauty and were proud of this reputation. When Cassiopeia, wife of the Ethiopian king Cepheus, said in public that she and her daughter Andromeda could claim a beauty superior to their own, they were outraged and asked Poseidon, their lord and protector, to teach their vanity a lesson. The god produced a tsunami that swept over the country and sent the monster Cetus against them. Cepheus asked the oracle of Ammon how to placate the divine wrath and was told that the beautiful Andromeda should be displayed chained on a cliff as a sacrifice to the monster. Perseus, who was flying over those areas, was made aware of the facts and agreed with Cassiopeia to deliver him from the monster in exchange for Andromeda, who was to become his bride. The hero thus beheaded the monster and freed the maiden. The scene depicted on the coin's reverse was well known in the ancient world, and is repeated identically in a fresco in the "House of the Dioscuri" in Pompeii. The presence of Medusa's head in both sources, is not accidental. After Andromeda's rescue, in fact, the wedding ceremony was staged, but Perseus had to face a large group of armed men, summoned by Cassiopeia, who was not willing to honor her pacts with the hero and preferred to give her daughter in marriage to Agenor. Perseus had to use Medusa's head against the attackers to prevail. Condition: Near very fine. Weight: 7.27 g. Diameter: 23 mm.

486 DIDIUS JULIANUS (193). Denarius. Rome. Obv: IMP CAES M DID IVLIAN AVG. Laureate head right. Rev: RECTOR ORBIS. Didius Julianus standing left, holding globe and volumen. RIC 3. Marcus Didius Severus Julianus was born in Mediolanum in AD 133 and grew up in the house of Marcus Aurelius, brought up by his mother, Domitia Lucilla, thanks to whom he was elected to the vigintivirate. Didius Julianus then distinguished himself in Germania against the Chauci and was awarded the consulship in 175. When Pertinace was assassinated, Didius Julianus proposed himself as his successor in a manner that, according to the historian Cassius Dione, was scandalous and infamous. Julian is said to have offered to the praetorians a large sum of money in exchange for the empire. Similarly, however, Sulpicianus, father-in-law of the late Pertinace, behaved in a sort of auction to buy the throne. Didius Julianus prevailed, winning power with 30,000 sesterces paid to each praetorian, but also promising to rehabilitate the memory of Commodus. His first action as emperor was in fact to bring down the head of the praetorian prefect Quintus Aemilius Leto, who had taken part in the conspiracy with Cassius Dion in 192 and was guilty of the murder of Commodus. Didius Julianus's power was short-lived, however, because of Septimius Severus, governor of Pannonia Superior, who accused him of murdering Pertinace and was supported by the people. Faced with the advance of Septimius Severus, Didius Severus was abandoned by the legionaries of the Danube and also by the Praetorians, without whom it was impossible to maintain power in Rome. The Senate thus, in an extraordinary meeting, deposed Julian and condemned him to death. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 2.93 g. Diameter: 19 mm.

Quadriga right bearing stone of Emesa upon which is an eagle; four parasols around. RIC 195. Varus Avitus Bassianus, son of Julia Soemia, besides being emperor was a priest of the sun god El-Gabal of Emesa, current Homs in Syria. In 218, thanks to the clever machinations of his grandmother Julia Maesa and the large sums of money she paid to the soldiers, Bassianus was appointed emperor under the name Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, the same as Caracalla. This was not a random choice, for the late prince was very dear to the hearts of his soldiers and, more generally, the Antonine name was well liked by the Romans. Of course, Bassianus would have had no right to bear it if the wily Mesa had not spread the false rumor that he was Caracalla's son. According to the senatorial literature, ill-disposed toward authoritarian rulers, Bassianus was the worst emperor Rome had ever had. His biography, written by Aelius Lampridius, which describes him as the most vicious and perverse emperor ever, is certainly exaggerated. Bassianus, however, was unable to integrate himself into Rome and imposed his lifestyle and absolutist conception of power. As high priest of the god El-Gabal, he tried to impose his cult on Rome, claiming to put him in the place of Jupiter and going so far as to celebrate the divine wedding between the god and Minerva. El-Gabal was represented as a black cone, most likely a meteorite. Rome was forced to accommodate that cult and build for El-Gabal a sumptuous temple on the Palatine, the Elagabalium. It was because of this inconvenient cult that Bassianus was called "Elagabalus" by all. According to the historian Herodian, during the festival in honor of El-Gabal, the emperor as a priest had the statue of the god placed on a chariot of gold and precious stones and, with the help of white horses, led it forward on foot and holding the reins, as if the god himself were driving the chariot. The chariot was preceded by horsemen and soldiers during the procession, while the people threw garlands and flowers. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 2.91 g. Diameter: 19 mm.

This Denarius was struck in AD 243/4, when the emperor was engaged in a campaign against the Sasanids of Shapur I, who, having succeeded his father Ardashir I, and invaded Mesopotamia in AD 241, conquering Hatra, Nisibis and Carrhae. Gordian had the Temple of Janus opened for the last time in history and personally departed for the east. The Victory depicted on the reverse should refer to one of the many successes the Romans achieved against the Persians, such as the Battle of Raesena, before the important general Timesiteus died of illness, greatly weakening Gordian's confidence and army. The emperor himself died in AD 244, from uncertain causes, when he was planning to cross the Euphrates River to invade enemy territory. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 3.25 g. Diameter: 21 mm.

746 VALENTINIAN II (375-392). GOLD Solidus. Aquileia. Obv: D N VALENTINIANVS P F AVG. Pearl-diademed, draped and cuirassed bust right. Rev: VICTORIA AVGG / A - Q / COM. Two emperors enthroned facing, nimbate, holding globe between them; above, winged Victory facing, with wings spread; below, palm frond between. RIC 40a (R3); Depeyrot 21. Flavius Valentinianus, of Augusta Treverorum (Treviri), son of Justina, ascended the throne when he was only four years old. He was elected augustus in 375 by the soldiers, because they refused to let the sole legions of Germania, who had nominated Valentinian's elder half-brother Gratian, choose the emperor. However young, Valentinian faced complicated situations with his mother and Gratian, such as the usurpation of Magnus Maximus in Britain, which was remedied by Theodosius I, who managed to prevent Valentinian from being attacked by the insurgent's legions. More complicated was the matter of the removal of the Altar of Victory from the Senate of Rome, which represented the city's glorious pagan tradition. Its removal was supported by Gratian, on the advice of charismatic figures such as Mediolanum bishop Ambrose, which led him to confront a group headed by senator Quintus Aurelius Simmachus. As much as Justina and her son were of the Arian faith and close to Simmachus, the altar was nevertheless removed to the great scandal of the court of Rome. When his mother and brother faced such situations, because of his young age Valentinian often remained in the background; moreover, he fell under the spell of a dangerous character: the Frank leader and able warrior Arbogastes, his magister equitum. Soon, however, their relationship became conflictual, partly because of the Altar of Victory, which Arbogaste wanted to see restored. Valentinian was found hanged from a tree in 392 at Vienne in Gaul. Sources disagree on the cause of death, some mentioning suicide, others leaning toward murder by Arbogaste. The emperor was probably the victim of a palace conspiracy, as Arbogaste had led to the elevation of Flavius Eugenius to augustus. The damnatio memoriae documented by some eroded inscriptions may support this hypothesis. His funeral was held in Mediolanum, at the behest of Theodosius I, by Bishop Ambrose, who also wrote a consolatory piece on the young emperor's death for the occasion. Condition: Extremely fine. Cross within wreath. RIC 214 (wreath ties 5); Depeyrot 72/4. Aelia Pulcheria was empress of the Eastern Roman Empire from 414, when she was only 16 years old, as regent for her younger brother, emperor Theodosius II, and then as wife of Marcian after Theodosius' childless death. This was a fervently Christian family: her father Theodosius I had been a disciple of St. Ambrose, and Pulcheria took a vow of virginity, convincing her sisters to do the same. She undertook to find a wife for her brother herself and convinced the pagan Athenais to convert to Christianity. The latter agreed and became empress under the name Eudocia. Pulcheria also convinced Theodosius to have the Jews driven out of Constantinople, depriving them of all their property, and to declare war on the Persians because they did not follow the Christian religion. He prohibited pagans from entering public offices and expelled the patriarch Nestorius, considered a heretic, from Constantinople. Upon the death of Theodosius II, who died without an heir, Pulcheria married Marcian, after rejecting all marriage proposals she had had up to that point. Marcian thus became emperor, provided, however, that the marriage was never consummated. As empress she sponsored the building of many churches and shrines, and engaged in intense correspondence with Pope Leo the Great, who especially begged her to help him suppress the Monophysite heresy of Eutyches, later condemned in 451 at the Council of Chalcedon. Pulcheria died in 453. In her will, drafted by Marcianus, she left all her property to the poor Condition: Extremely fine. Weight: 1.50 g. Diameter: 16 mm.
