Rec 26, RN 1887, 354, RPC I 2020.8 ( this coin ). 8 specimens cited. Extremely rare and historical. Ex Leu. Appian reports that Orsobaris Musa was a daughter of Mithradates VI of Pontos. Brought to Rome in 61 BC with a number of other descendants of the Pontic king, to be presented in Pompey's great triumph (App. Mithr. 117), we know that Orsobaris married Lykomedes of Comana, an unsuccessful contender for the Bithynian throne in 74 BC and priest-king of the temple-state of Comana in 47-30 BC. This coin was struck in the Bithynian city of Prusias ad Mare, presenting her name as 'Queen Orsobaris Musa', with another issue struck in the same mint for 'Orodaltis, daughter of Lykomedes' (RPC 2021). It appears that Orodaltis was the daughter of Lykomedes and Orsobaris and that she lived in the city of Prusias ad Mare somewhen in the late 1st century BC (possibly before, or until, the administrative reforms of Agrippa in Asia Minor in 22 BC). It is possible that Orsobaris received the city of Prusias ad Mare as a principality from Augustus after the death of her husband in 30 BC, and the coins in her and her daughter's name are part of a single issue, produced at some point in the years thereafter.

RIC II 642; Strack 472; Banti 29; BMCRE 1033; Cohen 39. Trajan's final campaign was sparked by Parthia's replacement of the pro-Roman king of Armenia with one of their own in 114 AD. Armenia had been a strategic and semi-independent kingdom which served as an important buffer between Parthia and Rome. The last conflict overt this region, during Nero's reign, resulted in a delicate balance that stabilized the situation for over fifty years. The move by Parthia now upset the balance and posed a threat to Rome's wealthy Syrian cities. Trajan's campaign was swift and decisive; by 115 AD, Armenia was restored as a Roman client state. To secure the eastern frontier, he then moved southward through Mesopotamia, and captured the Parthian capital, Ctesiphon, in 116 AD. Although short-lived, these victories were celebrated on much of Trajan's later coinage.

Obv: Draped bust of Serapis right, wearing modius Rev: Nilus reclining left, holding reed and cornucopia; Γ/-//ALE. Alföldi, Festival pl. IV, 35; Vagi 3384. Very Rare The Isis festival was a major celebration in Rome in the 3rd and 4th centuries, heralding the arrival of the ship of Isis (navigium Isidis) from Alexandria on 5 March. Besides Isis and Horus, other members of the Egyptian pantheon appear - Serapis, Anubis, Harpocrates, and Nilus. Such coins or tokens with imperial busts were first struck by Diocletian at Rome to mark the arrival of the ship, and the tradition continued through the 4th century; the latest imperial bust to appear is that of Valentinian II. Alföldi proposes that in the Middle Ages the festival associated with the Isis ship (also known as carrus navalis) became the car naval or carnival.

Aratus, 310-240 BC, whose only extant work is Phaenomena, a poem in 1,154 hexameters, consists of a hymn to Zeus, in which he describes the northern (19-320) and the southern (320-453) constellations. He refrains from giving an explanation of the planetary movements (454-461), apparently because of their complicated nature and the difficulty of calculating their conjunction (an allusion to the great year) . Next (462-558) Aratus describes the circles of the celestial sphere and then (559-757) deals with the calendar: the hours of the risings and settings of stars (559-732), the days of the lunar month (733-739), the seasons (740-751), and the Metonic cycle (752-757). The second part of the poem (758-1154) deals with weather signs and is an integral part of it even though some ancient commentators give it a separate title (Prognosis).
