SNG Copenhagen -; SNG von Aulock 7226; BMC -; Mionnet II, 270. Telephos was the son of Herakles and Auge, priestess of Athena and daughter of Aleus, king of Tegea in Arcadia. According to one version of the myth, Auge was expelled by the king and sent to Mysia, while Telephos was left in Arcadia and abandoned on Mount Parthenium, where he was suckled by a deer, then found and raised by King Corythus. Once adult, Telephos killed two of his mother's brothers, not knowing them, and, on the advice of the Delphic oracle, went to King Teutrant in Mysia to be purified. When the Greeks, on their first departure for Troy, landed in Mysia, Telephos killed Thersander, son of Polynices, but was wounded by Achilles in the thigh. The wound, after eight years, had still not closed because only he who had caused it would also be able to heal it. Telephos then went to Aulis in search of Achilles and was healed by him after promising to lead the Greeks to Troy. Condition: Very fine, some details tooled. Weight: 26.88 g. Diameter: 38 mm.

Diva Marciana, holding grain ears and sceptre, seated left on cart drawn by two elephants; each elephant with its own mahout. Woytek 725; RIC 750. The eldest daughter of the senator Marcus Ulpius Trajan and of Marcia, therefore Trajan's elder sister, she inherited her middle name, Marciana, from her mother's paternal ancestors. She married around 63 Gaius Saloninus Matidius Patricius, a very wealthy man, praetor and member of the religious college of the Arvales. From him Ulpia had a daughter Salonina Matidia. After Saloninus' death, Marciana did not remarry, although she had many pretenders due to her prestigious relationship with the emperor and her beauty. However, Trajan respected her wishes and never forced her to remarry. Her daughter Matidia instead married first a Matidius, then Lucius Vibius Sabinus, from a consular family, and from this marriage was born Vibia Sabina, future wife of Hadrian. When Vibius Sabinus died in 84 or 87, Ulpia Marciana with her daughter and granddaughters went to live in the family home of Trajan and his wife Plotina, and later in the palace. After 105 she was elevated to the rank of Augusta by her brother, the first sister of an emperor to receive this title. Although she was initially reticent, she was finally convinced by Plotina and first appeared on coins and depicted by statues. Her portrait is known for its complicated hairstyle with a high diadem. Marciana often travelled with Trajan, who considered her a trusted advisor and often asked her opinion on decisions. He also dedicated two cities to her, Colonia Marciana in Africa, and Marcianopolis in Moesia. She died between 112 and 114, when she was deified at the behest of Trajan, along with their father Marcus Ulpius Trajan. Condition: Extremely fine, smoothed. Weight: 26.89 g. Diameter: 33 mm.

The Nymphaeum of Severus Alexander: three arches containing statues, with facing quadriga on roof; below, building with sides seen in perspective; semi-circular basin in front. RIC 450. Extremely rare and the best appeared on market. Severus Alexander had this nymphaeum built on the Esquiline, the remains of which can still be seen in Piazza Vittorio Emanuele II. It was a magnificent and scenic monument filled with water-filled basins, statues and marble groups, enriched with gilded bronze elements. It was located at one of the highest points in Rome and was therefore visible from various parts of the city. The nymphaeum, however, also played an important role for the city. It was in fact a 'castellum aquae', a point of distribution of water to imperial buildings, to private citizens who requested it, and to public buildings, such as the many fountains in Rome, as it was located in the final section of a branch of the aqueduct coming from the Porta Tiburtina. This extremely rare type appears on a few emissions in gold, silver and bronze. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 10.24 g. Diameter: 27 mm.

810 ROMANUS III ARGYRUS (1028-1034). GOLD Histamenon Nomisma. Constantinople. Obv: + IHS XIS REX REGNANTIHM. Christ Pantokrator seated facing on throne. Rev: ΘCE BOHΘ RΩMAHΩ. Romanus standing facing, holding globus cruciger and being crowned by the Virgin Mary standing to right. Sear 1819. On the death of Constantine VIII in 1068, the eparch of Constantinople, Romanus Argyros became emperor, who enjoyed a strong influence in the city, also due to his noble birth. Romanus III is remembered above all for his vanity, which led him to be inspired by the great emperors of the past, such as Augustus or Marcus Aurelius, whom he wished to imitate in their deeds. In foreign policy, he succeeded in defending the empire against external enemies thanks to generals such as George Maniakes, who, by taking Edessa in 1032, inflicted a heavy blow on the Seljuk Turks. In terms of agrarian affairs, he decided to invalidate the edicts issued by Roman I Lecapenus and Basil II in favour of the poor and small landowners, preferring to favour the nobility of which he was a member, but causing great damage to the tax system and thus ending up harming the aristocracy itself. Romanus, 60 years old at the time of his coronation, had married the 50-year-old Zoe, daughter of Basil II. Perhaps because of her age, several attempts to secure an heir failed, so Zoe became the lover of Michael, the young brother of the court eunuch, John the Orphanotrophos. It seems that the emperor himself learned of the betrayal, which especially upset his sister Pulcheria, who was very hostile towards Zoe. Romanus however died in 1034, possibly drowned during the ritual bath before Easter Day, and Zoe immediately married her lover, who became emperor under the name Michael IV. Condition: Very fine.
