Herakles' penultimate effort takes place in the garden of the Hesperides. The apples had been Gaia's gift for the wedding of Zeus and Hera, and were guarded by the Hesperides, daughters of Night, and the hundred-headed serpent Ladon, constantly coiled around the trunk of the tree, at Hera's behest. Herakles killed him by shooting an arrow over the garden wall, built by Atlas. Hera could only ease the pain of Ladon's death by placing his image among the stars, as the constellation of the Serpent. The day after, the Argonauts also came to the garden and witnessed the transformation of the Hesperides into trees, desperate for the loss of their treasure and their guardian Condition: Very fine. Very rare mint. Astakos, a member of the Delian League, was founded in Bithynia by Megaresians and Athenians, according to Strabo, while Stephen of Byzantium reports a foundation myth involving Astakos, son of Poseidon and the nymph Olbia. The traditional date of the foundation is 712/1 BC, the year of the 17th Olympiad. Diodorus Siculus, on the other hand, reports that the Athenians, engaged in battle against Potidea, founded the city in Propontis in 435 BC. Zipoetes I, king of Bithynia, tried twice to absorb Astakos into his kingdom but was defeated in 315 BC by Antigonos Monoophthalmos, while in 301 he was successful, but the city was destroyed. Nicomedes I, son of Zipoetes, founded a new city on the same territory and named it Nicomedia in his honour. This became the capital of Bithynia and one of the largest cities of the eastern empire Condition: Good fine. Weight: 2.29 g. Diameter: 12 mm.

455 OCTAVIAN. Denarius (30 BC). Uncertain Italian mint, possibly Rome. Obv: Victory standing right on prow of galley, holding palm frond and wreath. Rev: IMP CAESAR. Octavian driving triumphal quadriga right, holding branch and reins. RIC<sup>2</sup> 264. This is one of the first issues to bear the legend IMP CAESAR, after Octavian assumed the praenomen Imperatoris in 29 BC. The obverse type is a clear reference to the naval battle of Actium in 31 BC, where Octavian defeated Antony and Cleopatra, who committed suicide a year later. Octavian ordered the murder of Cleopatra's son Caesarion and decided to seize Egypt in 30 BC, driven above all by the need to secure Egyptian grain, important for Rome's annona, and to get his hands on the Ptolemaic treasury. This enabled him to settle many war debts, pay off soldiers and arrange the settlement of a number of colonies scattered across the vast empire. It is probable that this denarius was struck from the spoils obtained in Egypt and that the type of the reverse recalls Octavian's triumphal entry into Alexandria. Condition: Good very fine. Weight: 3.69 g. Diameter: 19 mm.

472 TIBERIUS (14-37). GOLD Quinarius. Lugdunum. Obv: TI DIVI F AVG VSTVS. Laureate head right. Rev: TR POT XXVI. Victory seated right on globe, holding wreath in both hands. RIC<sup>2</sup> 10; King 6. The obverse legend calling Tiberius 'divi filius', son of God (Augustus), is one of the contradictions of what was considered one of the most controversial princes of ancient Rome. In fact, Tiberius was reluctant to accept the succession, more loyal to republican ideals. When he became emperor, he first of all refused the name 'Imperator', which was his by right. He also did not want the prestigious title of 'Father of the State' and apparently despised that of 'Augustus', which he ended up accepting, however, together with the 'imperium maius et infinitum' and the 'tribunicia potestas', which were the foundations of the Republic. He also arranged for the cult of the living emperor to be abolished. All these refusals contributed to the misunderstanding of Tiberius by his contemporaries, who were now attached to the Augustan concept of Empire. Tiberius was the son of Tiberius Claudius Nero, of noble lineage and republican orientation, and Livia Drusilla. His father had sided first with Julius Caesar, then, upon his assassination, with the Caesaricides, to join the revolt against Octavian and fall back south with Sextus Pompey. In 39 B.C. at Misenum, Nero was forced to divorce his wife to give her to Julius Caesar's heir, so Tiberius ended up in Augustus' custody and Livia gained an important political advantage. Tiberius married Vipsania Agrippina, the woman he loved and who bore him a son, Drusus, but was forced by Augustus to divorce and marry his daughter Julia. This was another blow to Tiberius who, disgusted with his new wife and politics, decided to retire to Rhodes, leaving room for Augustus' chosen heirs, Gaius and Lucius Caesar. The two, however, died (AD 2 and 4) and Augustus ended up associating Tiberius himself with the throne, whom he considered to be competent above all in military matters. Condition: Very fine. 573 DIDIUS JULIANUS (193). Denarius. Rome. Obv: IMP CAES M DID IVLIAN AVG. Laureate head right. Rev: P M TR P COS. Fortuna standing left, holding rudder on globe and cornucopia. RIC 2. Marcus Didius Severus Julianus was born in Mediolanum in AD 133 and grew up in the house of Marcus Aurelius, brought up by his mother, Domitia Lucilla, thanks to whom he was elected to the vigintivirate. Didius Julianus then distinguished himself in Germania against the Chauci and was awarded the consulship in 175. When Pertinax was assassinated, Didius Julianus proposed himself as his successor in a manner that, according to the historian Cassius Dione, was scandalous and infamous. Julian is said to have offered to the praetorians a large sum of money in exchange for the empire. Similarly, however, Sulpicianus, father-in-law of the late Pertinax, behaved in a sort of auction to buy the throne. Didius Julianus prevailed, winning power with 30,000 sesterces paid to each praetorian, but also promising to rehabilitate the memory of Commodus. His first action as emperor was in fact to bring down the head of the praetorian prefect Quintus Aemilius Leto, who had taken part in the conspiracy with Cassius Dion in 192 and was guilty of the murder of Commodus. Didius Julianus's power was short-lived, however, because of Septimius Severus, governor of Pannonia Superior, who accused him of murdering Pertinax and was supported by the people. Faced with the advance of Septimius Severus, Didius Severus was abandoned by the legionaries of the Danube and also by the Praetorians, without whom it was impossible to maintain power in Rome. The Senate thus, in an extraordinary meeting, deposed Julian and condemned him to death. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 2.05 g. Diameter: 18 mm.

Concordia seated left, holding caduceus and cornucopia. RIC 101; Depeyrot 17/1. It was Constantine I who introduced this new gold coin, the solidus. In the years between 309 and 311 AD, after reducing the weight of the nummus and eliminating the production of the lower denominations, the emperor implanted the entire system on this new real-value gold denomination, which remained from then on the only stable element in imperial coinage, cut at 1/72 of a pound (c. 4.5g), while the silver and copper coinage was continually modified, in an attempt to maintain the precise value ratios with the more precious metal. Together with the solidus, gold fractions and two new silver denominations were coined, miliarensis and siliqua, while the emission of silvered bronze coinage, the centenionalis, remained, replacing the old nummus. The substantial difference with respect to Diocletian's reform, which was also based on gold, is that with Constantine the desire to forcibly link the value of precious metal denominations to those of base metal was removed, assigning the latter to a completely marginal role in circulation. Initially the rules introduced applied only in the regions directly controlled by Constantine, but with the defeat of Licinius in 324, the solidus spread throughout the empire. Rev: D IUSTINIANVS SERVVS CHRISTI [...] / CONO[...]. Justinian standing facing, holding akakia and cross potent set upon three steps. Sear 1248-9. Son of Constantine IV and Anastasia, Justinian II became emperor at the age of sixteen and was the last of the Heraclian dynasty. He initially renewed the peace with the Arabs, also at the behest of the new caliph, 'Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan, who agreed to very advantageous terms, and also sent ten thousand Mardaites who were integrated into the Byzantine army. Justinian was thus able to concentrate on the Balkans, sending troops to subdue Bulgarians and Slavs, and achieved an important victory, after which he deported thousands of Slavs to Asia Minor, important for the strengthening of the army and the economic system linked to the working of thematic land. However, probably for religious reasons, there was soon a return to war with the Arabs (691-692), who refused to depict Christ on the coins they minted to pay tribute to Byzantium. The decisive battle took place at Sebastopolis in Armenia, where the army of deported Slavs were corrupted by the caliph's gold. The defeat was a heavy one and Armenia submitted to the Arabs. Justinian II was also hated by the people for his fierce tax policy and by the aristocracy for his concessions to small landowners. Inevitably he was overthrown after ten years of his reign, with the revolt of Leontius in 695. The emperor was imprisoned and had his nose amputated, hence the nickname 'Rhinotmetus' = 'the Slit-Nosed'. Finally he was sent into exile in Crimea. However, he did not give up. He escaped more than one assassination attempt and married the daughter of the Khazars leader, who converted to Christianity and took the name Theodora. He allied himself with the Bulgarians, granting the title of Caesar to Khan Tervel in exchange for military support. He then succeeded in retaking Constantinople in 705 and had Leontius and Tiberius II executed. His second reign was marked by his thirst for revenge against those who had made attempts on his life, especially in the city of Cherson. Hence the revolt that dethroned him the second time, led by Bardanes who, after taking the name Philippicus, cut off Justinian's head and put an end to his dynasty Condition: Very fine. Rev: VICTORIA AVGV I / CONOB. Cross potent set upon three steps. Sear 1463. Artemius was an imperial secretary during the reign of Philippicus before overthrowing him in 713, ascending the throne as Anastasius II. He immediately took an oath of orthodoxy to move away from the religious views of his predecessor, of monothete faith, in order to realign with tradition. Foreign policy posed a greater danger, as the Arabs were expanding into Asia Minor in the absence of a solid Byzantine dynasty. Anastasius thus organised a great naval expedition to Rhodes, but an internal betrayal led to his defeat and the rebels appointed a new emperor, a tax collector named Theodosius. Anastasius then faced a civil war, which ended after six months when the rebels prevailed with the help of the Ostrogoths. The emperor was forced to become a monk, but continued to plot to regain his throne, trying to gain the help of the Bulgarian Khan.
