Bull butting right; two fish in exergue. Noe J, 16; HN Italy 1823. After the foundation of Thurium (444 BC), there was a reduction in the weight of Staters in all the cities on the Ionian Sea, probably due to the period of crisis following the burning of the Pythagorean schools. The coins of Thurium spread considerably in the region, making up for the rarefaction of those of the other mints. It is difficult to say why the minting of these Distaters was decided, which became regular after the detachment from Athens, evidenced by the type of obverse showing Athena's helmet no longer encircled by the laurel wreath but decorated with Scylla. Thurium indeed supported Athens in the war against Syracuse, but refused to recognise it as motherland in 434/3 BC Condition: Very fine. Weight: 15.51 g. Diameter: 26 mm.

576 OCTAVIAN. Denarius (30 BC). Uncertain Italian mint, possibly Rome. Obv: Victory standing right on prow of galley, holding palm frond and wreath. Rev: IMP CAESAR. Octavian driving triumphal quadriga right, holding branch and reins. RIC² 264. This is one of the first issues to bear the legend IMP CAESAR, after Octavian assumed the praenomen Imperatoris in 29 BC. The obverse type is a clear reference to the naval battle of Actium in 31 BC, where Octavian defeated Antony and Cleopatra, who committed suicide a year later. Octavian ordered the murder of Cleopatra's son Caesarion and decided to seize Egypt in 30 BC, driven above all by the need to secure Egyptian grain, important for Rome's annona, and to get his hands on the Ptolemaic treasury. This enabled him to settle many war debts, pay off soldiers and arrange the settlement of a number of colonies scattered across the vast empire. It is probable that this denarius was struck from the spoils obtained in Egypt and that the type of the reverse recalls Octavian's triumphal entry into Alexandria. Condition: Very fine.
