

Zeus Numismatics

Glass Auction 2

18 February 2024

All prices are starting prices (EUR)
PDF catalog created by www.biddr.com

1 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

2 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

3 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

4 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

5 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

6 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

7 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

8 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

9 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

10 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

11 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 6 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

12 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

13 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

14 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

15 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

16 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

17 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

18 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 12.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

19 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

20 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

21 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

22 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

23 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

24 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

25 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10.4 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

26 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

27 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

28 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

29 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

30 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

31 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

32 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

33 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

34 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

35 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

36 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

37 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

38 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

39 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

40 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 5.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

41 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

42 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

43 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

44 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

45 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

46 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

47 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

48 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

49 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

50 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

51 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

52 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

53 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

54 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

55 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

56 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

57 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 5.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

58 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

59 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

60 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

61 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

62 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

63 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

64 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

65 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

66 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

67 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

68 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

69 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

70 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

71 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 4 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

72 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

73 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

74 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

75 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

76 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

77 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

78 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

79 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

80 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

81 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

82 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

83 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

84 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

85 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

86 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

87 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

88 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

89 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

90 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 6 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

91 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

92 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

93 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

94 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

95 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

96 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

97 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

98 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

99 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 12.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

100 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 2.4 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

101 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

102 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

103 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

104 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

105 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

106 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

107 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

108 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

109 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

110 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

111 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

112 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10.2 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

113 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

114 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

115 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

116 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

117 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

118 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

119 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

120 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

121 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 2.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

122 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9.4 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

123 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

124 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

125 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

126 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

127 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

128 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

129 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

130 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

131 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

132 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

133 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

134 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10.5 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

135 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

136 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 12 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

137 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

138 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 11 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

139 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

140 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

141 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

142 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 13 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

143 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD or later. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** Restored with meticulous care, this glass stands in excellent condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably fulfills all the needs and requirements of restoration and recomposition, as validated by both our expert and The Nobel Collection's owner. The family's proactive approach to acquiring even broken glass pieces underscores their commitment to not only preserving but also recomposing the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a dedication to the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 7 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman or Later Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a keen eye for both business and art. The family's fascination with glass extended beyond pristine artifacts; they actively sought and acquired broken glass pieces, showcasing a unique interest in the art of restoration and recomposition. These broken fragments were then meticulously offered to skilled artisans for professional repair and recomposition, resulting in the seamless restoration of historical glass artifacts.

144 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

145 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 8 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

146 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

147 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

148 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

149 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 9 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

150 **Item Description:** Immerse yourself in the captivating journey through time with this Ancient Roman Glass, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This glass becomes a tangible chapter in the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This glass stands in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, showcasing durability, and radiating timeless charm. It has not undergone any repairs, preserving its original, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and professionalism, this delicate work impeccably preserves the very good to intact condition of the glass, ensuring it remains in its original, unrepaired state. This commitment to maintaining the glass in its found condition underscores the family's dedication to preserving the historical essence of these artifacts, showcasing a profound appreciation for the artistry and craftsmanship of the past. **Size:** "Please note that the size provided is approximately 10 cm, and a detailed condition report is available upon request." **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, and the estimated value ranges from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation is provided based on our expert's review, considering the piece not just as an artifact but as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Any placed bid is considered a full acceptance of the item description and condition outlined above. **Provenance:** The Ancient Roman Glass, presented in this collection, originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection itself is a tapestry of cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a profound appreciation for both art and history.

151 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

152 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

153 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

154 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

155 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

156 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

157 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

158 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

159 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

160 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

161 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

162 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

163 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through time with this captivating Ancient Roman Glass bracelet, dating from 100 AD to 400 AD. **Ancient Glass History:** This bracelet is a tangible link to the rich history of glassmaking, showcasing the ingenuity of ancient artisans. From the skilled craftsmen of Ancient Rome to later civilizations, the evolution of glassmaking is evident in this exquisite artifact, blending functionality with aesthetic appeal. **Condition:** This bracelet is remarkably preserved, standing in very good to intact condition—free from cracks, exhibiting durability, and exuding timeless charm. It has retained its original form without any repairs, maintaining its authentic, found condition. **Our Expert Review:** Executed with precision and care, this delicate bracelet impeccably preserves its very good to intact condition, showcasing the dedication to preserving historical artifacts. The commitment to maintaining the bracelet in its original, unrepaired state underscores a profound appreciation for the craftsmanship of ancient times. **Size:** The dimensions of the bracelet vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Bidding will start at a nominal 1 Euro, with the estimated value ranging from 150 Euro to 300 Euro. This estimation considers the bracelet not only as an artifact but also as a distinguished work of art. Please note that this estimate is indicative, and the final price will be determined by market dynamics. Placing a bid indicates full acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Roman Glass bracelet originates from The Nobel Collection in the 1980s. The Nobel Collection is renowned for its cultural richness and historical significance, curated by a distinguished family with a deep appreciation for art and history.

164 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

165 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

166 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

167 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

168 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

169 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

170 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

171 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

172 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

173 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

174 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Gold Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient gold ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient gold ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this gold ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Gold Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

175 **Item Description:** Embark on a journey through the annals of time with this exquisite Ancient Silver Ring, dating from 100 AD to 700 AD or later. **Ancient Jewelry History:** This ring is a remarkable testament to the craftsmanship of ancient goldsmiths, reflecting the evolution of jewelry design across civilizations. Its intricate details bear witness to the artistic sensibilities of eras long past, offering a glimpse into the cultural richness of antiquity. **Condition:** Professionally restored and repaired, this ancient silver ring exudes elegance without overt signs of intervention. Carefully refurbished to ensure structural integrity, it maintains its original allure while harmonizing with modern preservation practices. **Our Expert Review:** Painstakingly restored by skilled artisans, this ancient silver ring stands as a testament to meticulous care and conservation efforts. While acknowledging its restoration, its enduring charm and historical significance remain undiminished, ensuring its place as a cherished artifact of the past. **Size:** The dimensions of this silver ring vary, and detailed measurements are available upon request, allowing you to appreciate its unique proportions. **Estimating Price:** Based on its historical significance and quality, the estimated value of this professionally restored ancient gold ring is between 1000 Euro to 2000 Euro. Please note that this estimate serves as a guideline, and the final price will be determined by market demand. Placing a bid indicates acceptance of the item's description and condition. **Provenance:** This Ancient Silver Ring originates from the Nobel Collection, a renowned repository of cultural artifacts. Its association with this esteemed collection adds a layer of historical significance, further enhancing its appeal to collectors and enthusiasts alike.

176 **Item Description:** Experience the epitome of contemporary luxury with these exquisite 21st-century silver jewelry pieces, sourced from the esteemed Nobel Collection. **Modern Jewelry Elegance:** These silver jewelry pieces represent the zenith of 21st-century design, embodying sophistication and style. Each piece is a testament to modern artistry, with sleek aesthetics and refined craftsmanship that define contemporary elegance. **Condition:** Impeccably maintained, these silver jewelry pieces showcase flawless craftsmanship and enduring allure. They exhibit no signs of wear or damage, reflecting the exceptional quality and meticulous curation characteristic of the Nobel Collection. **Our Expert Review:** Crafted with precision and finesse, these silver jewelry pieces exude refinement and luxury. Their flawless design and pristine condition make them icons of contemporary elegance, garnering admiration from collectors and aficionados alike. **Size:** Tailored to perfection, the dimensions of these silver jewelry pieces vary to ensure a perfect fit for every wearer. Detailed measurements are available upon request to accommodate individual preferences. **Estimating Price:** Valued for their exceptional quality and prestigious provenance, these contemporary silver jewelry pieces are estimated to range from 800 Euros to 1500 Euros. This estimate reflects their status as coveted treasures from the revered Nobel Collection. Please note that final pricing may vary based on market fluctuations. **Provenance:** Originating from the illustrious Nobel Collection, these silver jewelry pieces boast a lineage of excellence and distinction. Their association with this esteemed collection underscores their prestige, making them highly sought-after additions to any discerning collector's repertoire.