161 Legio XV Apollinaris. Circa 117-late 2nd century. Tessera (Bronze), uncertain mint in eastern Anatolia (Satala?). LEG / XV Raven standing to right. Rev. [AP] Boar standing to right. (raven not eagle, boar not bull). Extremely rare. Very fine. The few surviving examples of this highly interesting issue have all been misinterpreted to some degree. Clearly it was manufactured under the auspices of Legio XV Apollinaris, a well attested legion whose history we can trace from its recruitment under Julius Caesar in 53 BC down to the early 5th century AD. There has been some debate as to what the signum, the coat of arms, of Legio XV Apollinaris was, with suggestions ranging from a griffin to Apollo himself, or one of his animal companions. Fortunately, the tesserae do resolve this question, as the legion's emblems clearly were the raven, Apollo's sacred bird, and a boar - animals that have been variously misinterpreted as eagles, dogs, or bulls in previous descriptions. These interesting tesserae should likely be dated to after 117, when Hadrian stationed the fifteenth in Satala in Lesser Armenia, an important crossroad of the East-West route from Ankyra to Armenia and the North-South route linking Trapezous on the Black Sea coast with the legionary fortresses in Satala, Melitene, and Zeugma, and the great Syrian city of Antioch. Vexillae of Legio XV Apollinaris were also stationed in Trapezous and Ankyra, but it was in Satala that the legion's castra stativa, its permanent headquarters, was constructed under the praefectus castrorum, Lucius Gavius Fronto in 117. It is also here that we last hear from the fifteenth, namely in the Notitia Dignitatum, a late Roman list of thousands of offices and army units, which records the Legio Quintadecima Apollinaris as still being stationed in Satala and Ankyra in the early 5th century, though not in Trapezous anymore, and being under the command of the Dux Armeniae. Reverse translation: "Iovi Conservatori C₉sarum", (To Jupiter protector of the Caesars). Comment about this copy: Heavy weight. With all of its surface silvering. Comments: The reverse is addressed to the three Caesars appointed on April 1, 317: Crispus, Constantine II and young Licinius. With the consular bust, this bronze may be dated January 1, 319, the date of Licinius II's first consulate which he took with his uncle, Constantine I. The Antioch workshop includes fifteen pharmacies for this broadcast. For Licinius II, the coins were struck in all mints, except the eleventh. History: Licinius II, the son of Licinius I and Constantia, therefore nephew of Constantine I, was elevated to the Caesarate on March 1, 317 at the same time as his cousins Crispus and Constantine II. After his father's defeat in 324, he was saved, but was suffocated two years later. Weight: 2,9 gr Diameter: 19,8 mm

245 CONSTANTINE I THE GREAT (07/25/306-05/22/337) Flavius Valerius Constantinus Augustus (12/25/307-05/22/337) Centenionalis or Date: 318 Metal: copper Degree of rarity: UNIQUE Comments on the state of conservation: An example of exceptional quality for this type of coinage with an exceptional bust on a small thick blank, perfectly centered on both sides. Nice backhand with a little hit weakness on the shield. Magnificent smoothed black patina. Obverse legend: IMP CONSTANT-INVS AVG. Obverse description: Helmeted, draped and armored bust of Constantine I on the left seen from three quarters forward, holding a pole in the right hand and a shield decorated with a rider in the left hand; the helmet decorated with the stars of the Dioscuri (E*3). Obverse translation: "Imperator Constantinus Augustus", (Emperor Constantine Augustus). Reverse legend: VICTORIAE LAETAE PRINC PERP// (gamma)SIS.. Reverse description: Two Victories standing, face to face, placing a shield on a cippe on which we read: VOT/PR. Reverse translation: 'Victori, Laetae Principium Perpetu, Vota Populi Romani', (To the happy and lasting Victory of the prince/Wishes of the Roman People). Comment about this copy: Helmet richly decorated with two stars surrounded by dots. Studded breastplate. Magnificent shield decorated with a Rider (Constantin) galloping to the right, defeating two soldiers. Looks completely unreleased and unlisted with this bust type. Comments: A new reform in 318 modified the value of the bronzes which continued to be struck at 1/96 of the pound (3.38 g), but whose value increased from 25 to 100 deniers, which sometimes made them called centenionalis. During this period, a significant number of armored and warrior busts were recorded. With this type of right, only the second, third and fifth pharmacies were used out of a total of five pharmacies for the Siscia workshop. On the reverse, one of the Victories written on a shield VOT PR (Vota Populi Romani) which can easily be translated as 'The Vows of the Roman People'. This reverse commemorates the ten years of Constantine's reign. History: Constantine was born in 274, son of Constance Chlore and Helene. He was named Caesar on the death of his father on July 25, 306 and was proclaimed Augustus on December 25, 307. He married Fausta, the daughter of Maximian Hercules, who gave him five children, three of whom were Augustus. The first twenty years of his reign were devoted to establishing himself as principal august against Maximian Hercules, Galerius, Maxentius, Maximin II and Licinius. He is recognized as the first Christian emperor, although only baptized on his deathbed on May 22, 337.

Reverse translation: "Libertas Publica", (Public Liberty). Comment about this copy: Light weight. Type 3 ribbons. Comments: Coining in Constantinople did not begin before 326. It differed from that of other mints until 330 with its own setbacks. For bronze coins, diademed busts only appear from 327-328. New Rome was built on the site of Greek Byzantium. The dedication of the city only dates from May 11, 330. The reverse, by its composition, also recalls the victories of Constantine over all his adversaries since 306 and it will be repeated on the generic type of Constantinople. 264 JUSTINIAN I (1/08/527-14/11/565) Date: 529-533 Name of the workshop: Théoupolis, (Antioch) Metal: copper Degree of rarity: R1 Comments on the state of conservation: Large and complete blank. Unusual representation. Pretty light green patina. Obverse legend: D N IVSTINI-ANVS PP AV. Obverse description: Justinian I enthroned facing; he is helmeted, diademed, dressed in a chlamys and holds a long ball-shaped scepter in his right hand and a crucigerous globe in his left. Obverse translation: "Dominus Noster Iustinianus Perpetuus Augustus", (Our Lord Justinian Perpetual Augustus). Reverse legend: +THEVP in exergue. Reverse description: M between an eight-pointed star on the left and a crescent moon on the right, surmounted by a cross; between the jambs. Reverse legend: Δ Comment about this copy: Trace of overstrike on the right and reverse perhaps on the same copy (double strike) or re-use of an older follis. Comments: Antioch was destroyed by an earthquake on the night of November 29, 528 and subsequently rebuilt under the name Theoupolis (the city of God). In Antioch, which became Théoupolis, there were four issues between 527 and 539 before the introduction of the monetary reform in April 538. For the second issue, the first to bear in the exergue the mark of the new name of the city, we we have four pharmacies. History: Justinian succeeded his uncle Justin in 527 after a co-regency from April 4 to August 1, 527. He reigned with Empress Theodora. The construction of Hagia Sophia was completed during his reign which marks the peak of the Byzantine conquests. Carthage as well as Africa and part of Numidia were reconquered from the Vandals thanks to general Belisarius. After a century of Vandal domination, Romanism once again reigned over the Mediterranean. Belisarius then attacked the Ostrogoths and took Rome on December 9, 536. Theodora died in 545. Justinian reigned for another twenty years. Childless, his nephew Justin II succeeded him. Weight: 17,9 gr Diameter: 31,9 mm

266 Anastasius I AD 491-518. Constantinople Follis or 40 Nummi Æ D N ANASTASIVS P P AVG, diademed, draped and cuirassed bust right / Large M flanked by two stars; above, cross; below, Γ; CON in exergue. Very Fine Anastasius I, who reigned as Byzantine Emperor from AD 491 to 518, stands out in history for his dynamic leadership and impactful reforms. Born in modest circumstances, he ascended to the throne through a distinguished career in civil service and the military. His reign was marked by a series of pivotal reforms. Foremost among these were his economic policies. Anastasius initiated comprehensive fiscal reforms to stabilize the Byzantine economy, restructuring tax collection and reducing state expenditures. This prudent approach bolstered the empire's financial health. Anastasius also embarked on religious policies aimed at reconciling the differences between Chalcedonian Christians and Monophysites, two major Christian sects. Though his efforts made strides in promoting religious harmony, complete unity remained elusive. Infrastructure-wise, he fortified the empire's eastern frontier to protect against external threats, notably constructing the formidable Anastasian Wall. In foreign affairs, Anastasius skillfully negotiated a peace treaty with the formidable Sassanian Empire, easing tensions along the eastern border. Anastasius I's reign thus left a lasting legacy of financial stability, infrastructure development, and efforts towards religious reconciliation. His reign stands as a testament to the power of pragmatic governance in shaping the destiny of a vast and diverse empire. Anastasius was the last Roman emperor to hold the titles pontifex and pater patriae, and also the last to be called divus after his death Weight: 16,3 gr Diameter: 32,7 mm

338 Anonymous circa 11.th / 12.th MEDALLION BRONZE AE St. Theodore, in military dress, standing facing, holding spear with his right hand and shield with his left. No parallel found. Extremely unusual and rare depiction of St. Theodoros slaying a dragon. About very fine. Depictions of St. Theodore as a dragon slayer are extremely rare, but actually preceded the equivalent of St. George, who until the 11th century was frequently depicted killing a man rather than a dragon. The depiction in this seal is indeed really interesting and extremely unusual to our eyes. The most famous depiction of St. Theodore as a Dragon-Slayer, can be found in the Doge's palace in Venice, a spoil of the disgraceful sack of Constantinople during the 4th Crusade. 343 Lorraine (duchy of), Nicolas-François, teston, 1634 Florence A/(Cross of Lorraine). NFRANC. D.G DVX LOTH. MARCH. D.C.B.G. Bust of Nicolas-François right, draped and armored with flat collar R/MONETA. NOVA. FLORENT. CVSA Crowned shield surmounted by the (date) Copy with MARCH on the right, legend which is not reported neither by Flon nor by the Monete Italiane Regionali. Nicolas-François, cardinal and bishop of Toul, became Duke of Lorraine on January 19, 1634 through the abdication of his brother Charles IV. He renounced his vows then, granting himself a dispensation, he married his cousin Claude Françoise de Lorraine on March 8, 1634, which provoked the anger of the King of France. On April 1, 1634, Nicolas-François and his wife fled and took refuge in Tuscany with their aunt Christine, wife of Grand Duke Ferdinand III. These testons of the Duke in exile were struck from November 16, 1634 at the Florence Mint Weight: 8,4 gr Diameter: 29,2 mm
