Petropoli (San Pietroburgo), Ex Typographia Academiae, 1734. 4°. 1, (1), 12, (2), 8, 362, 10 pages, 7 plates of coins finely engraved. A header depicting a noble cartouche banner surmounted by a helmet, 2 figured capilettera. Cloth binding with gilt titles and threading on the spine. Library ownership label. Very good condition. Ex Libris Edward Theodore Newell. The only edition of a comprehensive and profound treatise on the coins of the kingdom of Osroen (Upper Mesopotamia) and its capital Edessa, composed by the multifaceted German professor of Greek and Roman Antiquities at the St. Petersburg Academy of Sciences (1726-1737). This text was the first numismatic work printed in Russia. The volume provides the complete history up to 1400 of the city of Edessa, now called Urfa, in the southeast of Turkey. Under the Roman Empire it became a province and at the fall of the Empire, the city was claimed by both the Persians and the Byzantines, and then conquered by the Arabs. It was later ruled by the Franks and later became part of the Ottoman Empire. The coins depicted in the text date from the period of the independent kingdom.

Roma, nella Stamperia Pagliarini con licenza de' Superiori, 1808. 8°. 19 x 13 cm. Final on frontispiece. viii, 82 pages, 6 folded charts of coins plates finely engraved at the end of the text. Original period parchment binding with gilt titles on the spine. 3 pages with a small lack at the top without damage to the text. Browning at the top of the pages. Boffito I, p. 421. Mionnet, p. 290. Reina 1055. Much sought-after first edition of the main study by Joseph von Eckhel, the father of modern numismatics, in the translation made by the Barnabite Felice Caronni (1747-1815), his friend and profound connoisseur of the subject. With his monumental Doctrina numorum veterum Eckhel affirmed a new orientation to the discipline, following in the description of coins not the alphabetical order by city, but the geographical order of Strabo, laying the foundations for the modern cataloguing of ancient numismatics still adopted today.

Reg. Aulae Illyr. Orient Typographus et Bibliopola, 1775. In 8°. (2), 1, (1), 4 pages of dedication to Empress Maria Theresa of Austria, 6 pages of introduction, 162 pages. 163-318 pages, 10 pages of index; 17 finely engraved folded plates of coins. Antique half-leather binding with marbled corners and plates. Gilt spine, threading and titles. Vignette and finials with floral decoration and figures. Front cover partially unbound. Some pages browned but no damage to the text. Overall, good condition. Following the suppression of the Jesuit College in Vienna, the adjoining numismatic cabinet was incorporated into the imperial collection. The former curator, Abbot Eckhel, moved in with the coins and was appointed curator of ancient coins of the Imperial Coin Cabinet in March 1774. Printed at the author's own expense, this first numismatic work is divided into two parts. The first part (pp. 1-162) is devoted to ancient coins minted in Europe, arranged clockwise from Hispania and Gaul to the Greek islands; the second part (pp. 165-318) concerns specimens minted in Asia and Africa, arranged clockwise from Pontus to Egypt; in addition, some indeterminate specimens are described, as well as some Republican, Imperial and Byzantine Roman.

London, 1881. 2nd Edition. 12,5 x 20,5 cm. 12°. vii, 1, 128 pages, 7 plates of coins. Red full leather binding, gilded titles on the spine. Annotation and signature, in pencil, of the previous owner. Very few damp spots on the cover, interior in excellent condition/as new. Daehn 1782. A note from BCD: One never tires leafing through such manuals. The choice of coins to illustrate them is guaranteed to produce exclamation marks from the reader. After all, the great museums have a right to flaunt the best of their best. As far as the average collector is concerned though, he can only look, and dream...

Reprint of Bologna 1971 of the first edition of Palermo, 1867-1922. 4°. xx, 79 pages, 34 plates. Green full cloth binding with gilt titles on the spine. As new. Clain-Stefanelly 2203. Antonino Salinas published the preface to this work up to page 16 and the illustrative text up to page 52 together with 15 copperplates. Upon his death in 1914, the work was unfinished and Salinas bequeathed his coins to the National Museum in Palermo in addition to what had already been prepared for the book. A committee was set up to continue the printing under the direction of Ettore Gabrici, Salinas' successor to the chair of the University of Palermo. The preface was completed and the missing pages 53 to 79 as well as plates XVI to XXXIV were published. Unfortunately, six plates could not be completed, so this rare work lacks number XX, which was supposed to include the bronze from Catania, XXV on the bronze from Gela, XXVII on the coins from Enna, and XXIX, XXX and XXXI on the coins from Hippana, Hibla Magna, Jaetta and Lentini.
