50 LUCANIA. Thourioi. Distater (Circa 350-300 BC). Obv: Head of Athena right, wearing crested Attic helmet, decorated with Scylla throwing a stone. Rev: ΘΟΥΡΙΩΝ / ΕΥΦΑ. Bull butting right; two fish in exergue. Noe J, 16; HN Italy 1823. After the foundation of Thurium (444 BC), there was a reduction in the weight of Staters in all the cities on the Ionian Sea, probably due to the period of crisis following the burning of the Pythagorean schools. The coins of Thurium spread considerably in the region, making up for the rarefaction of those of the other mints. It is difficult to say why the minting of these Distaters was decided, which became regular after the detachment from Athens, evidenced by the type of obverse showing Athena's helmet no longer encircled by the laurel wreath but decorated with Scylla. Thurium indeed supported Athens in the war against Syracuse, but refused to recognise it as motherland in 434/3 BC Condition: Very fine. Weight: 15.51 g. Diameter: 26 mm.

71 SICILY. Syracuse. Dionysios I (405-367 BC). Drachm. Obv: Head of Athena facing slightly left, wearing decorated triple-crested Attic helmet, earring and necklace of pendants; four dolphins around. Rev: ΣΥΡΑΚΟΣΙΩΝ / ΛΕΥΚΑΣΠΙΣ. The hero Leukaspis advancing right, holding shield and spear; altar to left, ram to right. Kreutzer II.7.42 (this coin); SNG ANS 308-9; HGC 2, 1364. Ex Kricheldorf XX (1969), lot 58. This rare Syracuse Drachm depicts on the reverse Leukaspis, a Sicilian hero who, according to legend, fell to defend the island during Herakles' invasion of Sicily. This is a surprisingly 'anti-Greek' myth, which could have several explanations. Some think it is due to the survival of a mixed environment in the city at that time (Rizzo), others note that Syracuse needed the support of the Sicilians against the Athenian expedition in the late 5th century (Ravel). Condition: Very fine. Weight: 4.07 g. Diameter: 18 mm.

Obv: Head of Athena Parthenos right, wearing triple crested Attic helmet decorated with Pegasus and floral pattern. Rev: A - ΘΕ / ΑΜΜ / ΩΝΙ / ΟΣ - ΚΑΛ / ΛΙΑΣ / ΘΕΜΙ / ΣΤΟ. Owl, with head facing, standing right on amphora. Controls: Z on amphora, ΣΦ below, two torches to right; all within wreath. Thompson 586d-e; HGC 4, 1602. Among the Greek poleis, Athens is undoubtedly the city that denotes the greatest monetary development. The earliest coinage followed the reforms attributed to Solon on the introduction of Attic weights to replace the Eginetic ones. These early coins, called "Wappenmünzen," were replaced by the "owls" at the end of the 6th century: tetradrachms marked with the head of Athena and the owl, next to which is now the ethnic of the Athenians. These types will last, with variations in style, until the end of silver production (c. mid-1st century). The most noticeable change occurs with the so-called "new style," established from the beginning of the 2nd century BC. In these issues the owl is surrounded by an olive wreath, which is why the tetradrachms are referred to in the inscriptions as "stephanephoroi" (= wreath bearers). Coins of new style also bear inscriptions with the names of magistrates Condition: Very fine. Weight: 16.70 g. Diameter: 29 mm.

Rose with bud to left and right; all within incuse square. SNG BN -; SNG Ashmolean 671. Memnon of Rhodes was one of the greatest obstacles for Alexander the Great during the Macedonian expedition against the Persian empire. He was a able strategist and admiral, to whom Darios III entrusted, along with the satrap Pharnabazos, the task of confronting Alexander by land and sea. The Macedonians won the important battle on the Granicus River (334 BC), while Memnon inflicted a heavy defeat on the sea. This represented a serious threat to Alexander who, without the supplies secured by his fleet, could not have advanced into Persian territory. Memnon, however, died in 333 of an unknown illness during the siege of Mytilene, and the Persian king was deprived of his most important general. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 3.07 g. 281 IONIA. Ephesos. Phanes (Circa 625-600 BC). EL 1/24 Stater. Obv: Forepart of stag right, head left. Rev: Abstract geometric pattern within incuse square punch. Cf. Weidauer 36-7 (1/12 stater); Traité -; Boston MFA -; SNG von Aulock 7773; Rosen -; CNG E-249/134. From the W. Hansen Collection, purchased from Calgary Coin Gallery, 30 September 2015. In light of the archaeological findings, the question about the place and date of the coin's origin now appears clearer. The oldest specimens were found in Ephesus in the sanctuary of Artemis, considered one of the seven wonders of the world, rebuilt by Kroisos from about 560 BC. The coins found were globules of precious metal, some without any markings, others with striations or with various types and punch marks, with values corresponding to the weight of the Stater and its fractions. The association of unminted specimens with actual coins indicates that the votive deposition dates to the time of the transition from the use of metal pieces by weight to those secured by an official mark. The pottery finds in the excavation allowed these coins to be dated precisely to the period of the reconstruction of the building by Kroisos, thus between the last decades of the seventh century and about 560. The most common pieces, bearing a lion's head or paw, are attributed to Lydia. Among the present series, coins depicting the stag and sometimes bearing the name Phanes are generally attributed to Ephesus or Halikarnassos. The otherwise unknown name appears on Staters and 1/3 Staters with the full-length stag. These coins declare themselves to be the personal symbol of a certain Phanes, following a pattern reminiscent of votive inscriptions and seals in which objects speak in the first person, representing a kind of signature. The new minting technique seems to be likely to parallel the older use of engraved stones to leave the imprint of a private or public authority, acting as a guarantee on pieces of metal of predetermined weight and binding them inextricably to the authority that produced them. This 1/24 Stater, along with other fractions, can be ascribed to the same series for stylistic and typological reasons. Condition: Good very fine. Weight: 0.58 g. Diameter: 7 mm.

Ludi Saeculares (Secular Games) were part of an important religious ceremony derived from an older one called 'Ludi Tarentini'. This ceremony included animal sacrifices and theatrical performances, which ran for three days and nights. They were held at the end of a saeculum (century) also determining the beginning of the next century. A saeculum was considered to last between 100 and 110 years. Ascertained celebrations during the Republican period took place in 249 and 140 BC. Then they were held in AD 22, wanted by Augustus, and in AD 88 by Domitian, as evidenced by this Sestertius. 564 HADRIAN (117-138). GOLD Aureus. Rome. Obv: HADRIANVS AVGVSTVS. Bare-headed, draped and cuirassed bust right. Rev: COS III. Hadrian on horseback right, raising hand. RIC² 784; Calicó 1218. Hadrian was born in Italica or Rome in 76 AD to an influential family; his grandfather had been a member of the senate. Having soon been orphaned, Hadrian was entrusted to his cousin Trajan, who acted as his tutor and granted him in marriage one of his great-granddaughters, Sabina, in 100 AD. It was therefore quite natural that on Trajan's death Hadrian should succeed him, although he had never adopted him. In fact at the prince's death the senate received letters from Trajan mentioning Hadrian's adoption, but according to Cassius Dio they were signed by his widow Plotina. Probably Lucius Licinius Sura, his future and greatest general, also made great efforts for Trajan to consider Hadrian's candidacy. Hadrian is remembered as a literate monarch, a lover of Greek letters and neosophistic philosophy. The new emperor had a very different political conception from that of his predecessor, beginning with the renouncing of the expansionism so much desired by Trajan in order to focus more on the defense of imperial borders, as evidenced by the construction of Hadrian's Wall. His reign was also marked by the travels he embarked on between 121 and 132, a way of learning about and expressing respect for every corner of the empire. Indeed, he visited numerous regions and garrisons, reserving special interest for the armies and the discipline of the soldiers. Despite his efforts to avoid any armed conflict, Hadrian had to deal with a Jewish revolt that erupted because he had renamed Jerusalem as the Colonia Aelia Capitolina, after his family name, for having a temple dedicated to Jupiter Capitolinus erected there and for forbidding circumcision, a custom he perceived as barbaric, despite not being hostile to Judaism. The revolt was very bloody and led by Simon bar Kochba, who lost his life in the last battle. In internal politics Hadrian gave his best, eliminating unnecessary expenses and undertaking magnificent public works, not only in Rome. He also asked his jurists to collect all edicts that would ensure greater justice for the weaker, but went to the disadvantage of the Senate, which responded with conspiracies. Hadrian managed to escape these attempts and sent all the conspirators to death, earning himself a very bad reputation. For this he publicly apologized and engaged in a series of food concessions to the people, forgave a huge amount of debt, and promised not to use any more violence against the senators. Promise that he did not Hadrian celebrated the anniversary of the founding of Rome on April 21, AD 121. That day commemorated Romulus' demarcation of the city's sacred enclosure: the pomerium. For the occasion, the emperor ordered the signs and 'cippi' that delimited it to be restored. According to Roman tradition, the area of the city of Rome could only be increased by rulers who added new provinces to the empire. But this was not the case with Hadrian, who merely reinforced the established boundaries and considered the time for expansion to be over. Condition: Good very fine. Weight: 3.40 g. Diameter: 18 mm.

700 GETA (209-211). Denarius. Rome. Obv: P SEPT GETA PIVS AVG BRIT. Laureate head right, with long beard. Rev: TR P III COS II P P. Janus standing facing, holding spear and thunderbolt. RIC 79. This denarius was issued shortly before he was assassinated by his brother. Geta ascended the throne together with Caracalla upon the death of his father Septimius Severus. Unlike Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus, the two could not live together and lived separately in the palace, without communicating with each other, despite the 'concordia' that could be read on their coins. This depiction of Geta, with an unusually long beard, brings his portrait very close to that of his father, as if to affirm and reinforce his claim to the throne. Caracalla prevailed over him, however, and had him killed in AD 212. Condition: Extremely fine. Weight: 2.58 g. Diameter: 20 mm.

758 GORDIAN II (238). Sestertius. Rome. Obv: IMP CAES M ANT GORDIANVS AFR AVG. Laureate, draped and cuirassed bust right. Rev: VIRTVS AVGG / S - C. Virtus standing left, holding spear and resting hand on shield. RIC 8. Rare Son of Gordian I, he was emperor with his father for a few weeks. The mother is unknown, possibly a niece of Herod Atticus. They came from a wealthy family of the equestrian order related to several senators. The name Gordian suggests an Anatolian origin, from the city of Gordius. It seems that Gordian accepted the empire in old age only on the condition that his son would be associated with it, in order to succeed him. In AD 237 Gordian II was in Africa as legate under his father's command. After a rebellion in Africa in 238, mainly because of the exorbitant taxes imposed by Maximinus, Gordian I accepted the imperium offered by the army and also the title of Africanus. He entered Carthage acclaimed by the crowd and politicians, while in Rome the prefect of the Praetorians was assassinated. The Senate, happy to deprive Maximinus, accepted the new emperor, and most of the Provinces sided with him. However, Capelius, governor of Numidia and supporter of Maximinus Thrax, invaded the province of Africa with the Legio III Augusta, composed of veterans. Gordian II, who had no trained or well-prepared soldiers, was defeated and killed in the battle of Carthage. Following the death of his son, Gordian I committed suicide by hanging himself with a belt, after just twenty days of reign. Condition: Very fine. Weight: 19.88 g. Diameter: 32 mm.

RIC 57; Calicó 3184. Rare Born to a daughter of Gordian I, sister of Gordian II, because of the young age at which he came to occupy the throne (13), Gordian did not rule directly, but the Senate did so for him. Gordian had become prince because the Senate needed to placate an uprising of the traditionalist urban plebs, bound to the dynastic ideal, and in order to take advantage of his family's wealth. Moreover, the praetorians had acclaimed him emperor just to show the Senate that they were the ones who decided who to put on the throne. Among the first moves was the dismissal of the legion in Africa because it had supported Capellianus and led to the deaths of Gordian I and II, who were deified. During his relatively long tenure there were several problems to deal with. In 240 Sabinianus, elected caesar in Carthage, prepared to make war on him, but was stopped by the governor of Mauretania. In the north the barbarians were making constant raids and sacking villages and towns. Gordian was too young to face these problems, but fortunately for him he could count on the diplomatic and military skill of Timesitheus, who had become prefect of the praetorium and granted him his daughter, Tranquillina, in marriage in 241. Rome succeeded in repelling the Persians of Shapur I in 243 thanks to Timesitheus, but on his death he was replaced as prefect of the praetorium by Marcus Julius Philip known as 'the Arab'. The latter, however, was not satisfied with this title but aimed at the throne, and he convinced the army that they needed an adult prince and not a boy. Gordian showed maturity and offered to cede the throne to Philip and become his caesar, but he was killed in 244. The Senate was informed that he had died of wounds sustained in a battle against the Persians. His body was sent to Rome where he was deified. Condition: Near extremely fine. Weight: 4.73 g. 823 MARIUS (269). Antoninianus. Colonia Agrippinensis. Obv: IMP C MARIVS P F AVG. Radiate, draped and cuirassed bust right. Rev: CONCORDIA MILITVM. Clasped hands. RIC² 482. Marius was emperor in Gaul for a short period in AD 269. He is listed among the Thirty Tyrants in the Historia Augusta. It seems that Marius was elected by the soldiers who had killed his predecessor Postumus, because he had not allowed them to sack the newly conquered city of Mogontiacum (Mainz). Marius allowed the soldiers to loot in Mogontiacum, then moved the capital to Augusta Treverorum (Trier) as evidence of mints active there, such as the one in Mogontiacum which was probably moved to Colonia. After a few months of reign he was assassinated, the reason is not known. According to a late tradition, he was a blacksmith who made a rapid career in the Roman army, becoming an officer. After the death of Postumus, he held power for perhaps two or three days before being killed by a sword of his own making. But the story is unreliable because from the number of coins he minted, he must have reigned for at least twelve months. Condition: Extremely fine. Weight: 2.85 g. Diameter: 19 mm.

With the famous Battle of Mursa in 351 Constantius II inflicted a severe defeat on Magnentius, who two years later killed himself along with his brother Decentius, caesar of the West. This marked the beginning of a united kingdom for the winner, who at that point needed a caesar with a view to dynastic succession. Constantius appointed his cousin Constantius Gallus, who married Constantina, sister of the emperor and widow of Hanniballianus. Constantius Gallus was an able general who had brought down several Persian revolts. He had made himself hated not so much for his despotic ways as for his pro-poor monetary policy, in contrast to that initiated by Constantine and continued by Constantius II in favor of gold coinage and the wealthier classes. This led to his eventual assassination by a conspiracy of the Antioch aristocracy and his 'damnatio memoriae'. In his place in 355 Constantius II appointed Julian, who was destined to become emperor with the appellation "Apostate". Condition: Extremely fine. Weight: 3.53 g. Diameter: 22 mm.

NGC 6648750-001 (Ch AU / Strike 5 / Surface 4) The reverse of this Solidus glorifies the Gallic army, which proved very attached to Julian, acclaiming him Augustus in 360. Gaul was in fact overlooked by Constantius II and was paying huge taxes. Julian was able to reduce them and win the trust of the soldiers to the tune of military victories. Julian II was born in Constantinople, son of Basilina and Julius Constantius, half-brother of Constantine I 'the Great'. Because of his young age he was spared in the 337 massacre of Constantine's family members. His youthful education at the court of Constantius II was in the care of the pagan eunuch Mardonius, marked by ancient gods, and he thought he would succeed by winning the war against the Persians of Shapur II. After a series of victories the emperor reached the gates of Ctesiphon in June 363, but at that point he hesitated and, instead of attacking the city, decided to wait until he rejoined Procopius' army. This move proved fatal, for after a hard fight at Maranga on the Tigris, he was wounded and killed at Samarra. Julian was buried at Tarsus, while peace was signed with Shapur II and Jovian, a moderate Christian, was elected new emperor. Condition: Extremely fine; some luster in field. Weight: 4.48 g. Despite the moment of weakness of the Byzantine Empire, under the rule of Theophilus, and the discord that was tearing the Carolingians apart at the time of Lothair, Sicard failed to take advantage of this to avoid the parable of decline of the principality of Benevento. The anarchy and revolt were the result of several factors, mainly the difficult trading conditions of the principality, the people's constant opposition to any reforms and Sicard's cruelty. The prince, who was at war with the Neapolitan dukedom, stripped churches and monasteries and seized relics to be shipped to Benevento, imprisoning relatives and nobles who could constitute a danger. After a series of plunderings, confiscations and death sentences of citizens and enemies, he was finally killed by the Beneventans, starting a period of anarchy for the principality. Rev: VICTORIA AVC̄H A / CONOB. Cross potent set upon three steps. MIB 2; DOC 2a; Sear 1463. Artemius was an imperial secretary during the reign of Philippicus before overthrowing him in 713, ascending the throne as Anastasius II. He immediately took an oath of orthodoxy to move away from the religious views of his predecessor, of monothete faith, in order to realign with tradition. Foreign policy posed a greater danger, as the Arabs were expanding into Asia Minor in the absence of a solid Byzantine dynasty. Anastasius thus organised a great naval expedition to Rhodes, but an internal betrayal led to his defeat and the rebels appointed a new emperor, a tax collector named Theodosius. Anastasius then faced a civil war, which ended after six months when the rebels prevailed with the help of the Ostrogoths. The emperor was forced to become a monk, but continued to plot to regain his throne, trying to gain the help of the Bulgarian Khan. His attempt came to an end with his assassination in 720, during the reign of Leo III, Theodosius' successor Condition: Good extremely fine. Weight: 4.47 g. Diameter: 19 mm.
