69 MYSIA, Pergamon. Circa 450 BC. AR Diobol. Laureate head of Apollo right / Bearded head right, wearing Persian tiara, within incuse square. Von Fritze, Pergamon pl. I, 1; Mørkholm, Pergamene 1; SNG BN 1546–8; Winzer 7.1 (Eurysthenes, satrap of Pergamon). VF, granular surfaces. From the first coinage of Pergamon. Rare. The identification of the portrait on the reverse of this issue has been the subject of debate. The individualized features suggest it is the portrait of a person rather than the personification of a deity or mythical figure. Most recently, Winzer assigned this issue to Eurysthenes, but his attribution necessitates a downdating of the issue to circa 400 BC, which is unlikely, and also is based on a misinterpretation of Xenophon, Hellenica 3.1.6 (see Mørkholm, Pergamene, p. 182, note 1). The traditional dating of mid 5th century BC is probably correct, and the ruler of Pergamon during this time is uncertain. After the defeat of the Persians in the early fifth century, Gongylos of Eretria, who had served as an intermediary between the Spartans and Xerxes, was compelled to flee to Asia Minor, where he was granted the territory of Pergamon as a reward from the Great King. His descendants ruled over the city until at least 400 BC, so it is likely that the satrap depicted here is one of the Gongylid rulers. Condition: Very Fine Weight: 1,66 gr. Diameter: 11,3 mm

313 Greek KINGS OF SKYTHIA. Skyles, circa 470-460 BC. AE, Nikonion. Owl standing left, head facing. Rev. ΣΚ. Anokhin 571. SNG BM Black Sea -. SNG Stancomb -. Extremely rare, perhaps only the seventh known example. Very fine. Herodot reports that Skyles was the son of the Skythian King Ariapeithes and a Greek woman and hence of mixed origin (Hdt. 4.78-80). His base of power was Nikonion, situated on the Dniester Liman and the smallest of the three remote Greek poleis in the region. Much like its neighbors Tyras and Olbia, Nikonion was heavily influenced by its Skythian surroundings and always in danger of losing its autonomy to the tribes, but the multicultural city was also a center of trade and a great exporter of grain. One side of the object features a carved depiction of a lion, though the details are somewhat worn due to age. The lion appears in a dynamic stance, which was a common motif symbolizing strength, power, or protection in ancient iconography. The reverse side is smooth and undecorated. The reverse side displays two engraved symbols or characters, possibly representing an ancient script or personal marks. The overall wear and patina suggest long-term use or significant age.
